The Year in Our Eyes

As we left for summer break, we looked forward to being away from school. Soon, though, we longed for our friends and our classmates. When we look back we have our own favorite memories, whether it was that game when you scored a point for the home team, got an A+ on a big test, had fun on a club field trip, or finally met that special someone. These are the memories that will stay with us for the rest of our lives. These memories shaped who we are. Every year had its own memories, each one different in its impact on us, every year unique. As you left school you said goodbye for the summer or for the rest of your life. You looked into your friends' faces, where the memories were, in our eyes.

Student Life

Homecoming, homework, Prom, a job and just relaxing with friends... Just a few of the things on the minds of the students. The halls were constantly buzzing with some kind of activity. Whether it was the SCA putting up new posters, or a sports team running the halls to stay out of the rain, somebody was always there. With lists of responsibilities a mile long students were not only dedicated to the school but also had after school jobs or work at home to complete. And in the few seconds of time left after the responsibilities, there was always that time to do what a teenager does best: RELAX!

TIME TO THINK. Senior Bryan Morgan takes time to mentally prepare before warming up for the cross-country meet.

PSYCHED! Freshman Tiffany Pascoe and Erika Tripp play during the pep rally. The band played in the hallways before the pep rally to get the students psyched up for the Homecoming pep rally.

JUNIOR SPIRIT. Screaming juniors hold up signs and show their school spirit at the pep rally.

MAKING PLANS As Senior Bridgette Egan rang up sales at Lady Foot Locker she thought about what she would do after work.

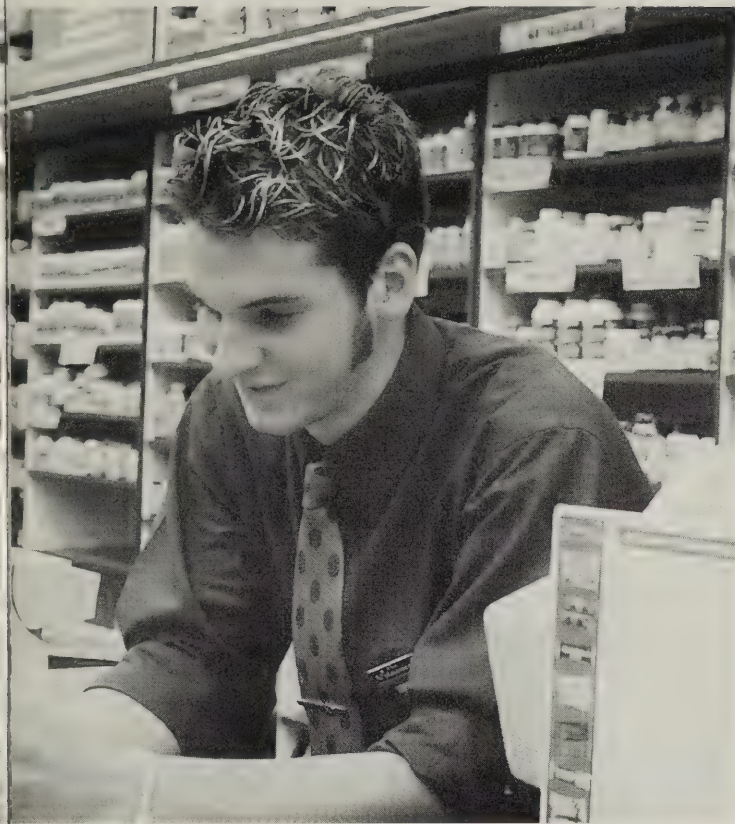

A CAR MEANS WORK. Senior Tim Tapp works at Sports Authority in his spare time. His part-time job gives him money he needs to fix his car.

HANG OUTS In their spare time Seniors Lyndsi McCormick and Sarah Davis hang out and shop at the mall.

Spare Time

EXTRA MONEY
Senior Miles Buchanan earned some extra money by working at the Vitamin Shop.

What was left after school and work? For those who had spare time, we had a long list of ways to spend it. For instance, Senior Rafeal Ramirez said, "In my spare time I like to play on my Playstation."

Spare time was all about having fun and being able to do what interested you. Junior John Mock said when he had spare time, which was very rare, he hung out at friends' houses. He also enjoyed getting lost in a good book. "I like to read non-fiction books," Mock said.

Top activities for spare time included hanging out at the mall, going to movies, talking on the phone, and surfing the Internet. Tonya Gale, a sophomore, said "Sometimes, when I have the time, I go to the mall with my friends or I relax with a good book."

From the everyday conversations with friends to the most outlandish hobby, students spent their spare time doing what they enjoyed. Having the choice to do what they wanted was what it was all about.

Lucky Stiff

MONTE CARLO!!! One of the songs of "Lucky Stiff" sung by Becca Kelison and Nathan Fair. Lucky Stiff played March 30, 31, and April 1, and it was the talk of the school. The play starred Wes Reid, Jenny Catron, Becca Kellison, Nathan Fair, Carol Colon and Lee Stilner.

The comedic production told the tale of how a man had to travel around Monte Carlo with the body of his dead uncle in order to receive his six million dollar inheritance. Along the way he meets a cast of crazy characters and wild misadventures, including the crazy femme fatale who shot and killed his uncle. As an added bonus the audience got to sit on stage with the cast. Cast members also entertained the audience before, during and after the ten minute intermission.

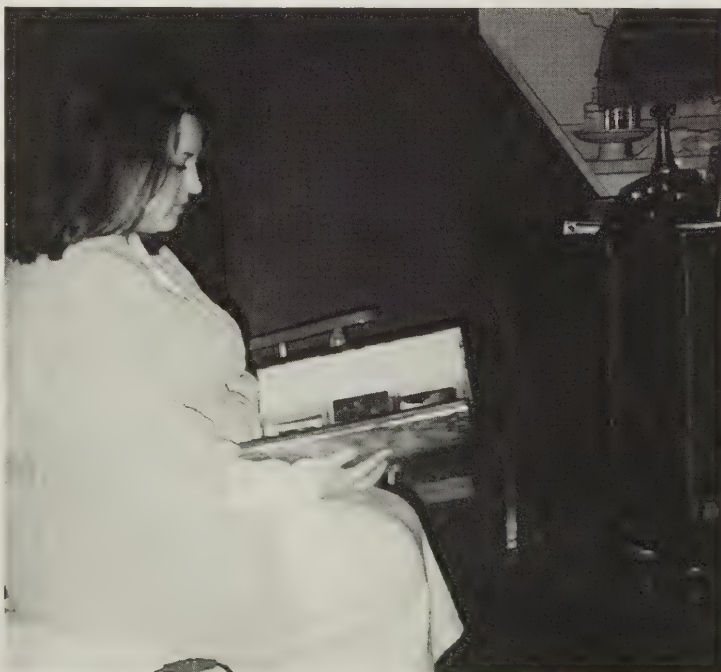

Preperation for this play was different from that of a dramatic play because of having to learn the musical numbers and choreography. The set was a french casino consisting of transparent screens, large dice, and an apron the size of Manhattan. The setting helped to lay the scene for the comedic and romantic aspects of the play. "The sets reveal details in obvious and not so obvious ways about the characters, setting, status, etc. to the audience," said drama teacher Deb Hansen.

Lucky Stiff was one of the great plays put on in the spring along with the unique style of the all phone play of "Belles" which showed on June 1, 2, and 3. Belles starred Amber Petrovics, Becca Czarnecky, Molly Porter, Molly Gilliland, Crystal Timbrooke and Helen Way including the voice of Wes Reid. Belles is the story of six sisters who have all their conversations on the phone and hear about the crazy antics of their mama.

PROM PROMISE

Many memories are shared as Seniors Sara Kennedy and Thad Goodwyn share a dance at prom.

Partying and drinking after prom was so common it had almost become a cliché. Kids were drinking on TV and in movies; it was expected. Students, parents, and teachers decided to take a stand against teens drinking. The PTSA organized the After Prom Party to give students something fun to do without alcohol or drugs and the Students Against Drunk Driving club (SADD) sponsored the Prom Promise.

The After Prom Party was held at Planet Fun on Route 1. Students participated in karyoke, played pool, arcade games, sumo wrestling, gambled in a mock casino, and of course bowled. The party gave an alternative to students who may not have had an entertaining place to go where drugs and alcohol wouldn't be involved. Senior Jesse Nelson said, "I think that it's important to have programs like these because then we know our friends are safe."

Senior Mike Woodcock said, "I signed the pledge because I wanted to be safe after Prom and I wanted to encourage my friends to follow my example."

Reactions to the programs were positive. Woodcock said, "I believe if students were offered a cool alternative to going out drinking, they would take it. Most people I know drink because they're bored."

Moving On

Graduation...one of the most memorable days of your life. As the ceremony began, the principal got up to speak... but nothing happened! The microphone didn't have power! While the teachers worked to get the microphone working, the seniors started celebrating early by spraying silly string and passing a beach ball overhead.

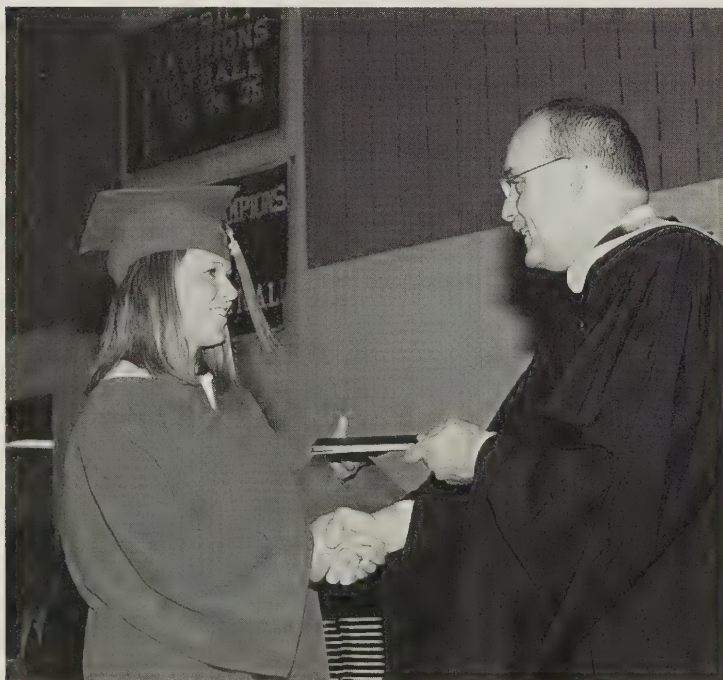

Finally the microphone came back on, graduation began. As the speakers talked and the students went to receive their diplomas, the families of the students cheered and cried, waiting anxiously with cameras to catch that perfect picture before their proud graduate left the stage. Once the students received their diplomas and took their seats, Mr. Fitch made the emotional announcement that the Class of 2000 had officially graduated.

As the new graduates left the school, they were greeted by their friends and family taking pictures. They said their final goodbyes to the faculty and thanked their favorite teachers for their efforts. They waved goodbye to the school, and started thinking ahead to the rest of their life.

FREE TIME

In a little free time, Matt Fletcher and Patricia Phipps sit and talk.

Love is in the air! When it comes to high school, couples swarmed the hallways. Shy, outgoing, long-lasting relationships or dating were just a couple of the qualities that couples shared.

Opposites attract or so they say. Freshman Emilee Howard said, "You don't want someone like you because there would be no mystery." She also added, "Opposites definitely attract."

While students believed that opposites attract, Junior Megan Warren mentioned, "People who are alike, are more compatible because they feel more comfortable around each other."

Students wondered about which couples would stay together after high school. According to Love@AOL.com, only five percent of high school sweethearts remain together after their senior year.

If you were asked what type of people your friends were, how would you describe them? Some students said their friends were preps, troublemakers, freaks, party animals, and more

School was the number one place to make friends. Junior Shauna Scott said, "I hang out over at my friend's house so we can socialize."

What about fights among the friends? Some friends had little spats, but nothing serious. Most argued about things such as the opposite sex, school, religion, personal choices, and other opinionated topics.

Was everyone friendly to one another? The majority said yes, but some insisted that no, not everyone got along. Mindy Souvannavong said the reason why she was friends with a lot of people was because "if [her] friends are friends with them, then they're probably cool."

Sometimes friendship led to more than "just friends." According to the students, most have gone out with a friend before. Candis Miller said, "Currently I'm going out with my best friend's brother." Senior John Low summed it up, "Friends are just friends; it's a really confusing topic."

Student Cars

PERSONALIZE
Students like to personalize their cars. Junior Seth Casarotti fixed up his Chevy S-10 by lowering and putting rims on it.

TO BUY OR NOT TO BUY.
Not all students have a car handed to them from their parents. Junior Angie Robinson has a 2000 Toyota Celica, and she has the responsibility of making all the monthly payments.

High school students not only used their cars for transportation but also to socialize. A car changed a student's lifestyle in many ways.

Craige Stone said, "I made many new friends after I got my Chrysler because I give people rides." He added, "I can go where I want when I want."

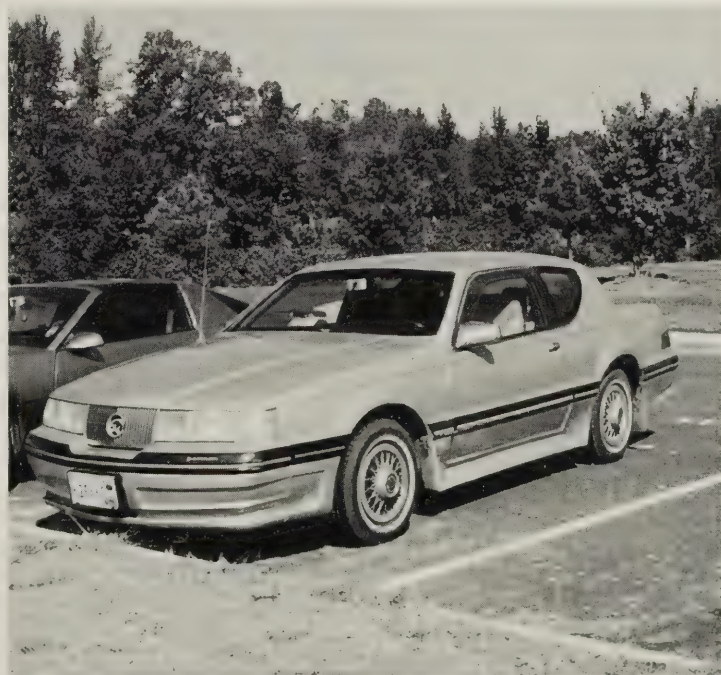

Not only did students find their cars to mean freedom but also a ticket into new friendships. Junior Megan Warren said that her life was different because she didn't have to depend on other people, like her parents, for rides any more. She could pick up her friends and go out to the movies, dinner, or anywhere.

Warren said, "My biggest problem is I never have any money because of gas."

Having a car made it easier for students to socialize with their friends. Junior Duane Ferguson said, "I usually drive with a friend; then we go meet other friends." He said they met on weekends and went to car clubs, where he tried to show off his low riding 92' Ford Ranger.

When students got a car their lives changed. They no longer had to depend on other people for rides. The students enjoyed the freedom provided with a car.

Personal Profile

Tabetha Krieglstein, born and raised a citizen of Germany, moved to Spotsylvania County when she was eight years old. As a freshman, she recalled her great experiences of childhood in Germany. Her schooling experience existed of one elementary school. "While living in Germany, I attended Hattenhoffer Grundschule," Tabetha said. "In Germany, schools are regulated where children learn more in a shorter amount of time than in America."

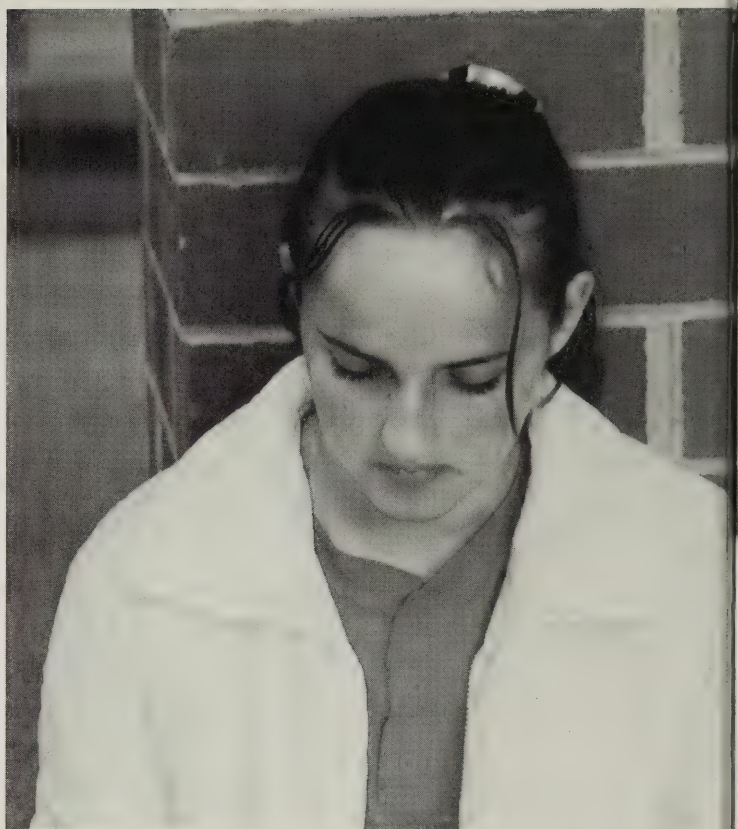

Krieglstein was 8 years old when she came to America in 1995. It took her three months to be able to communicate with Americans without her mom's help. When she moved here she didn't speak a word of English.

While in Germany, Krieglstein enjoyed visiting her friends, riding bikes, and going to the playground, the number one hangout, where all her friends gathered.

Krieglstein saw major differences between Germany and the US. "Germany has less summer vacation time due to the fact that there are more holidays that we celebrate in Germany. Also there is a big difference in the way our streets and cities are built." She found rural Spotsylvania a big contrast to her German hometown. "In Germany I was able to walk right out the front door and go shopping."

By Emma Williams

A NEW HOME. Tabetha Krieglstein, a resident of the United States since 1995, hangs out in the library.

Personal Profile

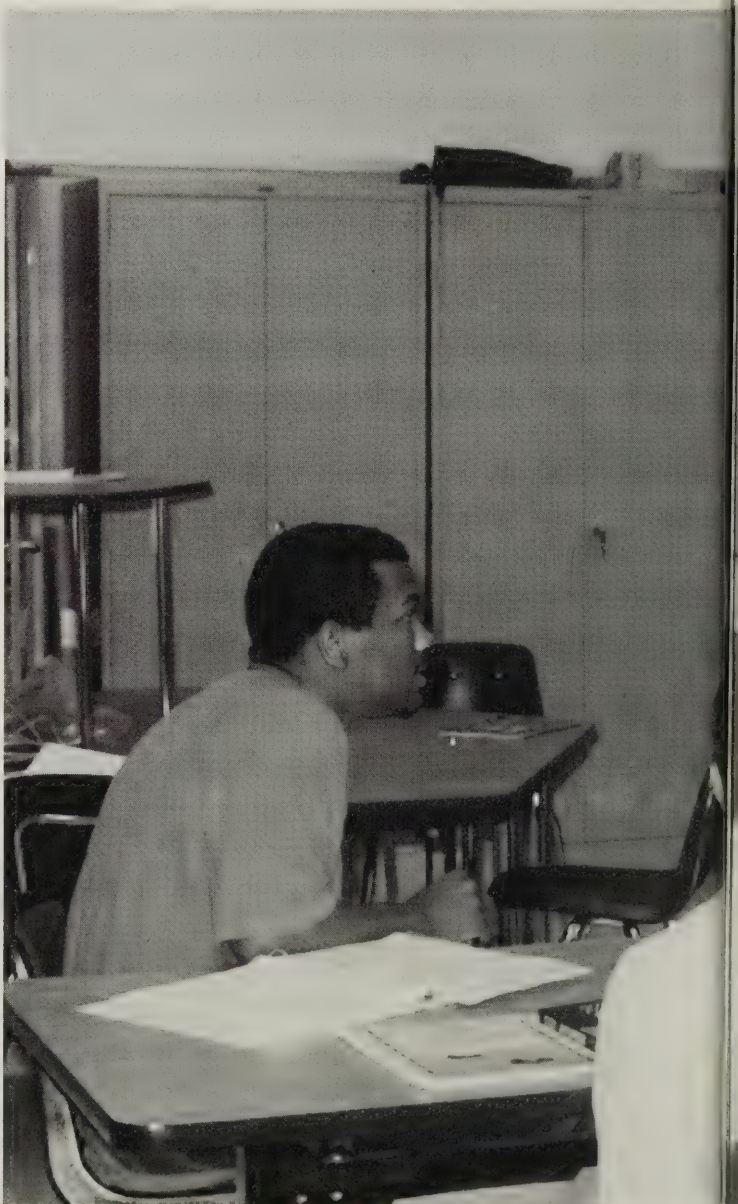

This year Japan sent a teacher to our school for four months. His name was Mr. Rifu and he came here to share his culture and teach the Japanese language.

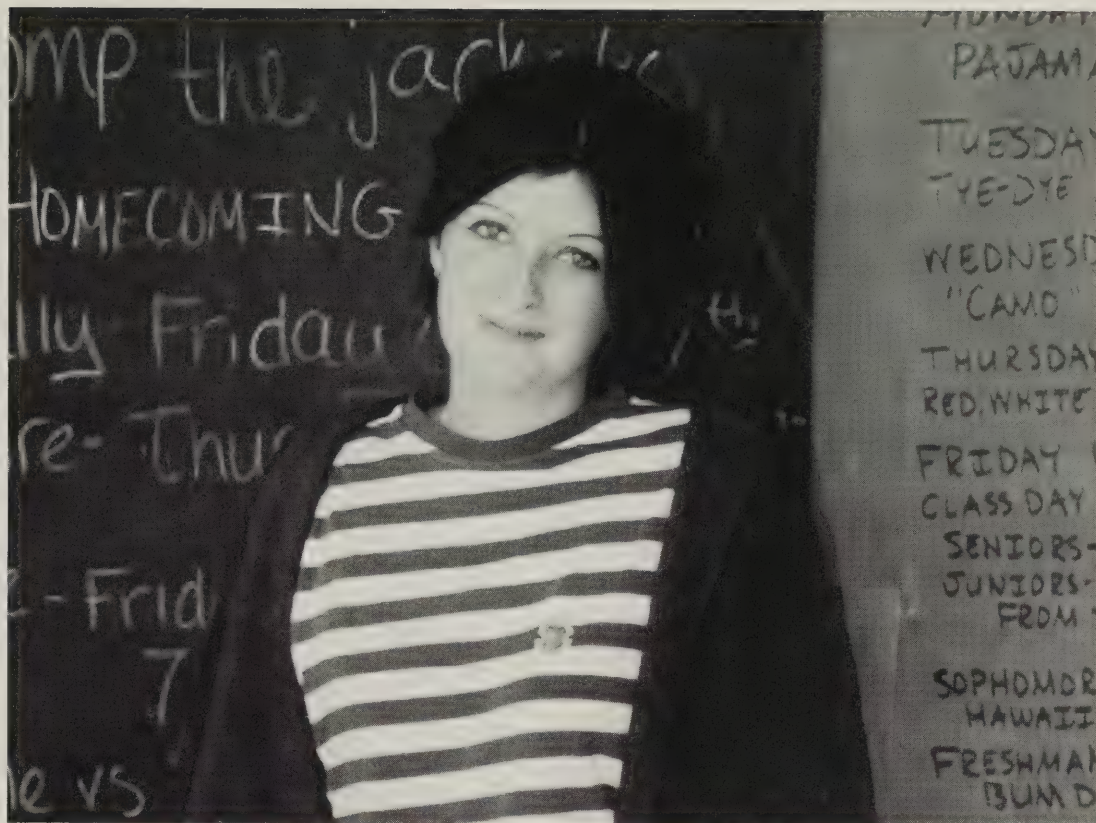

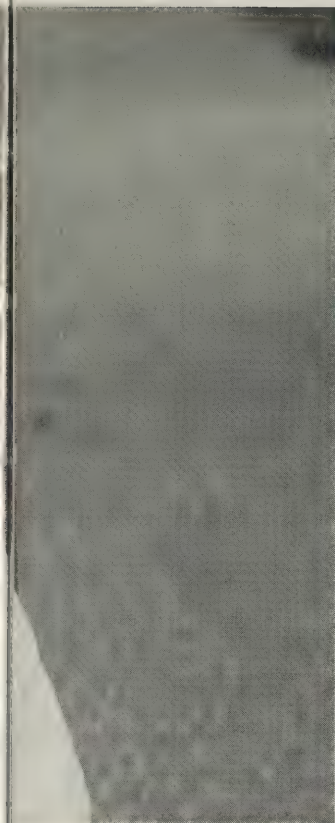

A Math teacher in Japan, he was chosen to be one of 8 teachers Japan sent to America in a teacher exchange program. The main difference he saw between America and Japan is that in Japan the teachers move from class to class instead of the students. He said that Spotsylvania High is a "very good school and the students have smiles and happiness."

He liked America a lot, but he missed his family and couldn't wait to tell them all about his experience in America. He kept in touch with his family through e-mail. Mr. Rifu also missed Japanese food, books and magazines, and his Lexus ES 300.

Personal Profile

Have you ever wondered what it would be like to be a foreign exchange student, traveling around the world and experiencing new things? Senior Sophia Ravagnan experienced new things as a foreign exchange student from Italy.

Ravagnan wanted to come to America as an exchange student because she "wanted to learn other traditions, customs, English, and become more responsible."

Some things that Ravagnan discussed about her homeland ranged from the people to the places. One place that she liked in Italy was Venice. Ravagnan said, "I like Venice because there isn't traffic; there are no cars, just boats." She commented on not liking was the politicians in Italy. "They don't think about people and they don't want immigration." Some things seem to be the same around the world.

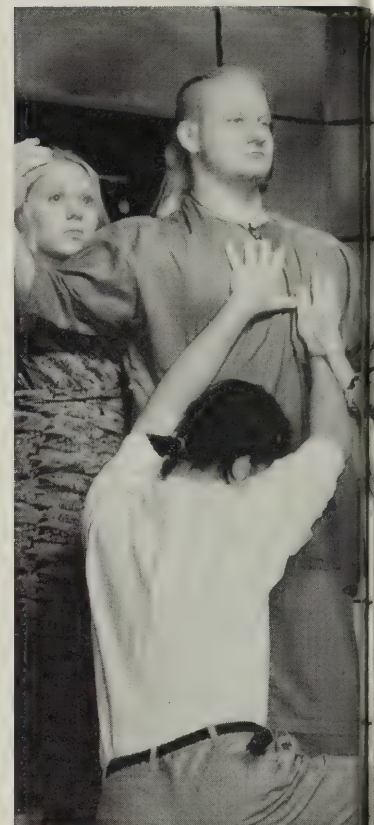

Ravagnan made many new friends while living in America, but she missed her friends and family who remained in Italy. She kept in touch with her friends and family by telephone, e-mail, and letters. Coming to America opened Ravagnan's eyes about how we treat each other. For instance, Ravagnan said that at school she was treated differently by some people. She said, "Some people don't like me and treat me differently because I am from another country."

Sophia was one of the many students who came here from a different country in search of a different culture and who opened our eyes to different perspectives.

In mid October, the drama and chorus students presented a majestic love story called Once on this Island. The peasants and the gods set on a tropical island performed a magical story of how love conquered death even in the midst of betrayal.

The students worked hard to get this performance together. Long nights of staying after school for practice and saying the lines over and over to make them right.

All the excitement started to build up for that special night on stage. Most performers had two parts to play, which meant added pressure. The opening night finally came and they got to perform.

Senior Dennis Souvannavong said, "My favorite moment in the play was when I got to play the roll of the frog." The frogs stood on the front right side of the stage and hopped up and down.

Junior Jessica Willis played a the lead role in the musical. Willis played the girl that fell in love. When she asked what her favorite part of the play she responded by saying, "My favorite part is when I sang "and forgive...." in the last song." Willis also added, "It's a good lesson to learn."

The story was a heart warming musical play, one that touched everyone.

Spirit Week

How far would you go to show your school spirit? That was the question students answered in the week that led up to the Homecoming game against James Monroe.

The Spirit Week was to let students express the way they feel about our school. The attire varied each day between pajamas, tie dyes, camo, and Red, White and Blue. The week concluded with Class day. Class day was Bum day for freshmen, Hawaiian for sophomores, Blast from the Past for Juniors, and Toga day for Seniors.

More than half of the school participated in Spirit week. Those who found the time to get dressed up went all out with face paints, body suits, and outrageous clothing. On Tie Dye day, Junior Michael Mullins came to school in shorts and a T-shirt but after the moment of silence he began putting on a full length body suit and tried to walk around. A little snug and uncomfortable, he managed to wear it for 10 minutes before removing it. Senior Melissa Hood said, "Spirit Week is a fun way to act wacky and to show spirit!"

School tattoos, teddy bears, beads, braids, hats, grass skirts, and face paints were just a few of the items associated with Spirit Week. Joseph Calderon, a new face from Puerto Rico, dressed up for a few of the themes and said, "It was interesting to see the way people dressed and acted."

SPIRIT STICK. Tanner Eades holds the spirit stick high after the seniors won at the pep rally. Seniors traditionally win the spirit stick.

“GIVE ME AN S-P-O-T-S-Y-L-V-A-N-I-A, NOW GIVE ME A K-N-I-G-H- T-S!!! WHAT’S THAT SPELL? SPOTSYLVANIA KNIGHTS!!” was the cheer that the cheerleaders used to get the school motivated for the Homecoming game against James Monroe.

Band members began the rally as they paraded through the halls before the rally. As the students entered the gymnasium, they sat by class under banners designed by class members. Glitter, markers and paint decorated the banners.

The JV cheerleaders got the rally started, jumping and screaming, “Let’s go Spotsy!!!” While cheering on the football team and our school, the cheerleaders warmed up the crowd for the dance number they were about to put on. Seven minutes later, the dance routine was over and the students and faculty were clapping their hands, and stomping their feet. Then the Varsity cheerleaders took the floor,

The dance competition between club representatives kept the pace up. “Sisqo” impersonator Adam Johnson and cheerleaders Maritta Ellis and Samni Adaramola led the participants. Senior Jennifer Black won the $50 prize.

As a grand finale Coach Coleman and the football team ate the grasshoppers they collected, representative of the JM team. The team and school were ready!

Homecoming Game

Every fall, school doesn't seem to really start until that special weekend....
HOMECOMING! It was always one of the most exciting events of the year, and this was no different.

The chill in the air didn't cool the crowd. Before the game the crowd got to watch the parade with 23 floats. They were all creatively decorated and designed with their special themes. The floats carried the Homecoming court, representatives from all four classes, and members of most of the clubs.

Fans packed the stands and the score keeper was busy as the Knights dominated the game. Everyone showed up to cheer on the team. The crowd was wild!

The Knights stomped on James Monroe, 42 to 8. Everyone enjoyed themselves as they watched the game to remember.

HAVING A GOOD TIME. This happy couple shows everyone how to have a good time.

SHARING JOKES. Juniors Tandi Brooks and Jamie Szczecincki along with their dates share a joke before the dance.

On Homecoming night elegant dresses and sparkling faces caught our eyes. When students entered the dimmed gym they discovered the whole room awaited them, opening up the possibilities for an exciting evening ahead.

This year students were excited for more floor space. Previous Homecoming dances were limited to half the gym. The SCA sold 997 tickets for the dance in 2000, almost double from the year before. Junior Megan Warren said, "I was so surprised at how many people actually stayed for the whole dance this year."

The gym was filled throughout the dance. Junior Melanie Rosser said, "I didn't want to leave early because I had so much fun."

Senior Ann Callahan said, "The music was awesome this year. It was something you could really get into." Indeed many students were very happy about the music this year. The Enchanted Night in the Forest was one to remember. Floorspace, good times, and great music; no Homecoming could be better.

By Lindsay Jones

SLOW DANCE. Juniors Crystal Tulloch and Jake Freeman dance together. They've been dating since late last year.

TAKE A LOOK AT US NOW

The progression through the year produced lasting memories. We had triumphs and defeats. Through the good and the bad, we had people, classmates, friends, and teachers. They were the bright spots in our rainy days. It was the people in our lives that made the memories. We remember hanging out with our friends, cracking jokes between class (as well as in class), and enjoying each other's company. There are those who stand out, like sports players or popular teachers. But we must not forget those who were behind the scenes. From the senior football player to a shy freshman, they were all a part of our school. . Everyone helped to make our school what it was, the people made our memories.

Election 2000

George W. Bush selects Dick Cheney, former Wyoming representative, and former secretary of defense as his vice-presidential running mate on the Republican ticket.

The 2000 presidential election was in many ways decided by not just the voters but the courts. Five weeks after election day, the US Supreme Court blocked Al Gore's request to have disputed Florida ballots recounted. George W. Bush and Dick Cheney won the election after being awarded Florida's 25 electoral votes.

Antiquated voting methods in this age of technology threw the presidential election into turmoil. Punch card ballots and the accompanying "Volomatic" system were first created in the 1960s. Disputed ballots had chads, or paper fragments hanging from the punch card that made it difficult for voting machines to read the ballots.

Academics

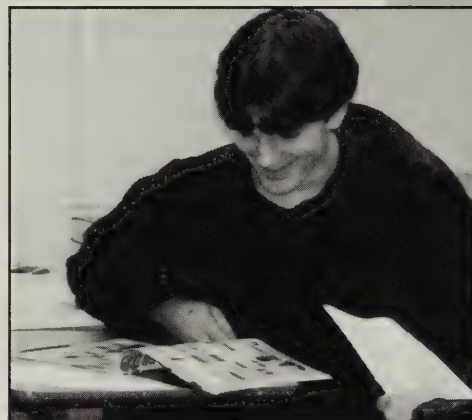

Remember those nights when it was 2:00 AM and you had just finished the last Coke in the refrigerator. You still had one more math problem to go and you had to study for the next day's History test. Why did we put ourselves through these miserable moments? What was our motivation? We were just looking for the grade.

From History and English, to Math and Science, to PE and Band, we did our best to get the grade. We labored through the labs and struggled through the lectures. We coasted through activities, and exhausted ourselves during exams.

We set our standards as high, and we were upset when we fell short. Upset, but not disheartened, and we came back to try again and achieve the goals that we envisioned in our quest of looking for the grade.

TYPING PARTNERS! Juniors Ebony Monroe and Amanda Kirsch work on an assignment together in the computer lab. Computer lab was available to all students.

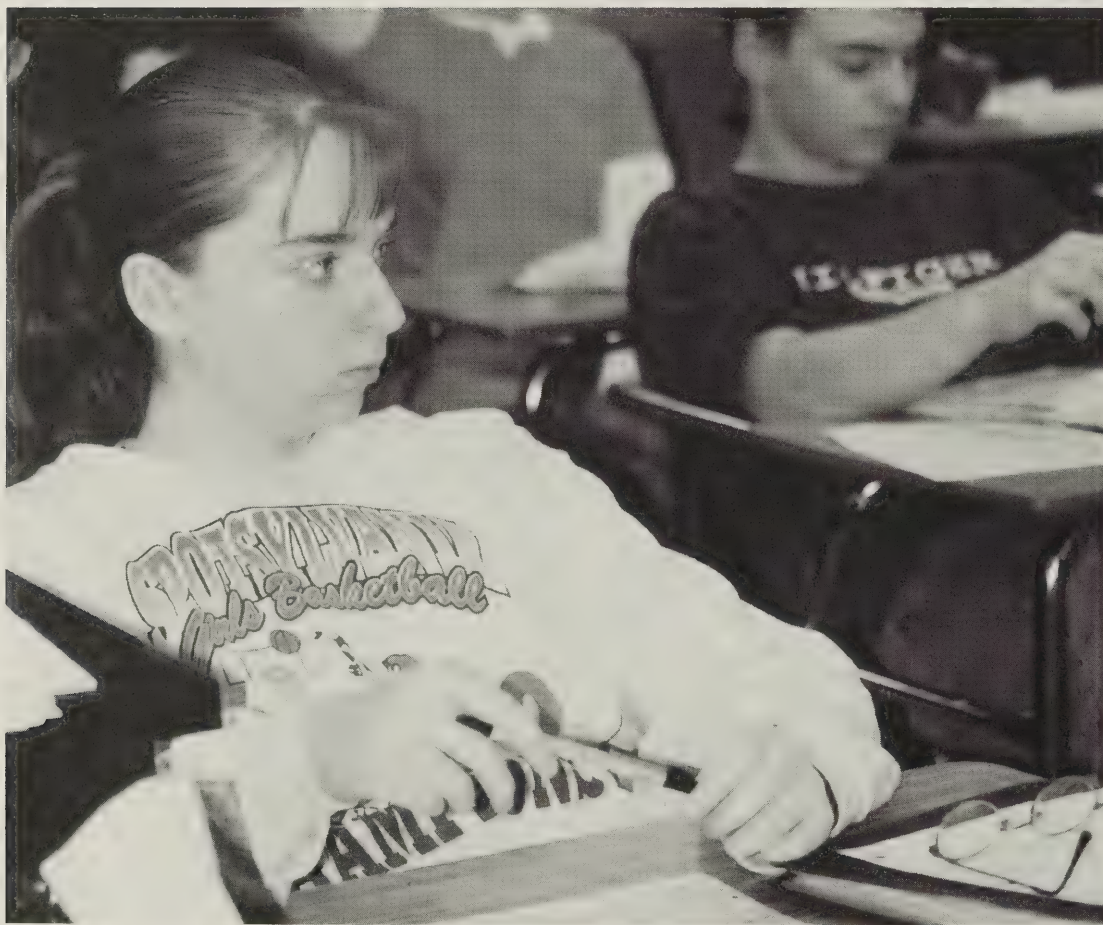

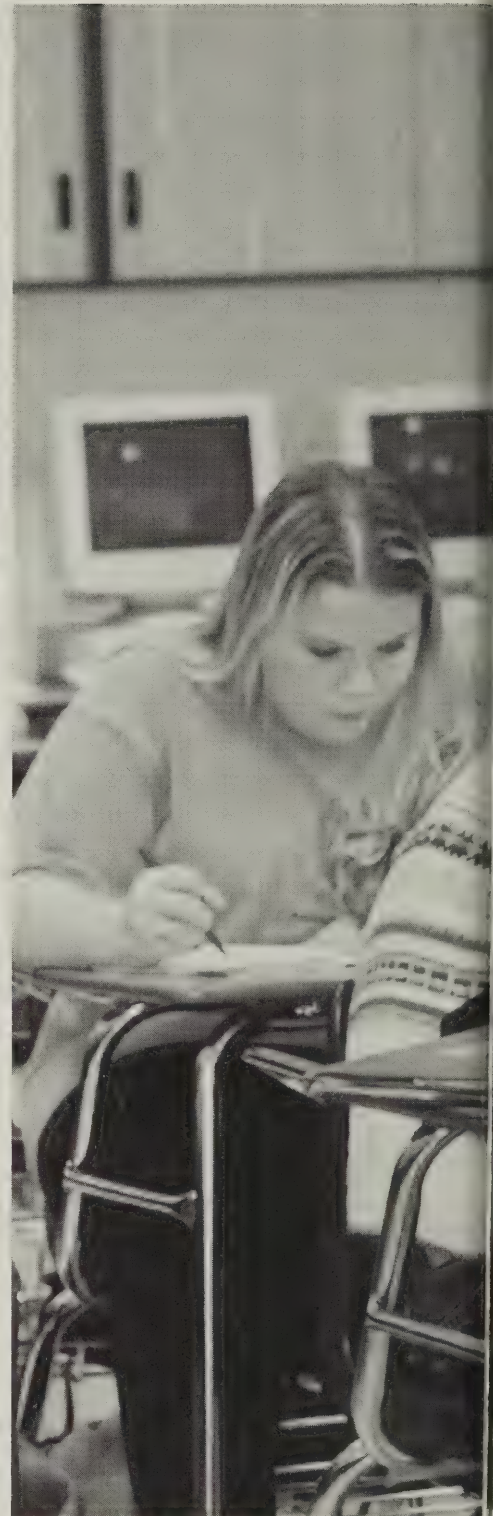

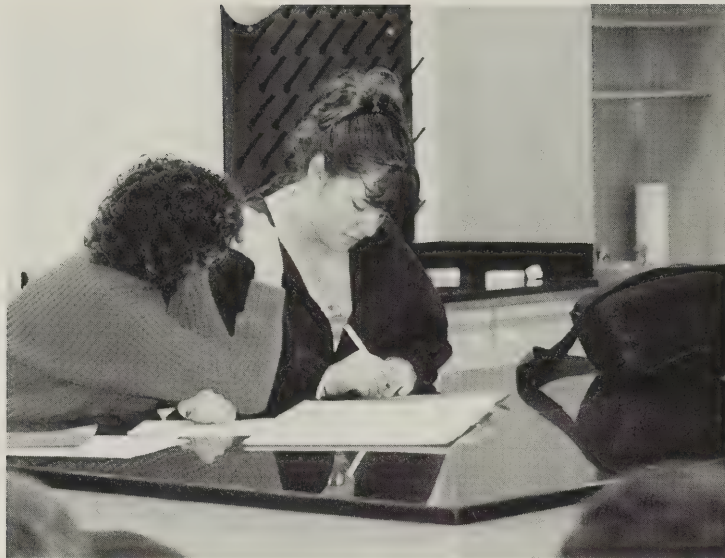

JOKE TIME! Senior Jeremy Pittman likes to squeeze in some talk time during class with some friends.

THINKING HARD! Sophomore Marcus Curtis gets a little free time at the end of class so he can think about what he learned today.

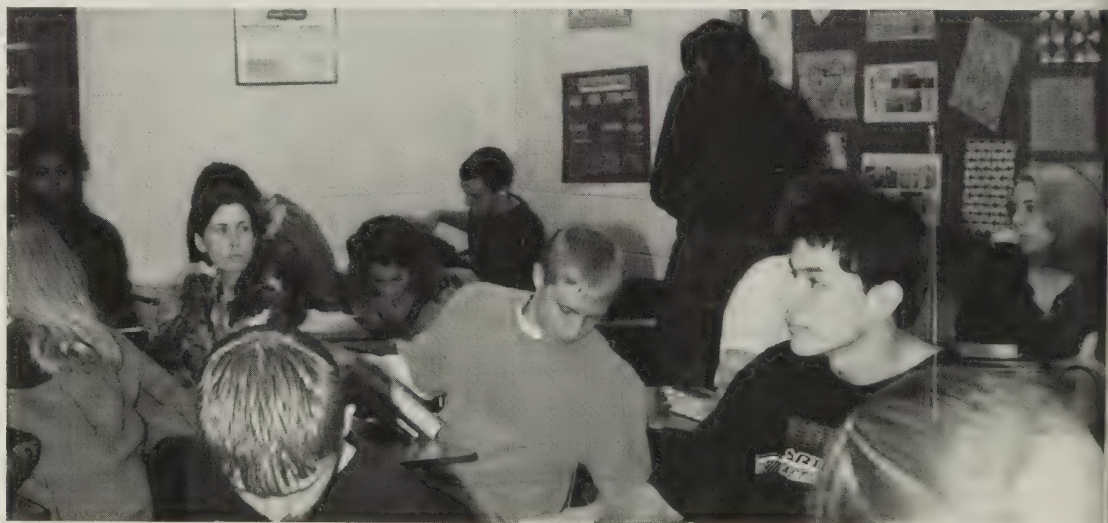

MAY I HELP YOU? Biology teacher Ms. High helps one of her students on an assignment.

DID YOU CATCH THAT? Advanced Chemistry I student Brandy Ryan pays close attention to Mrs. Fox's instructions.

LET'S BEGIN! Before class students prepare by getting out their paper, pencils, books and calculators. Being organized was the key to being ready for class to begin.

Math and Science

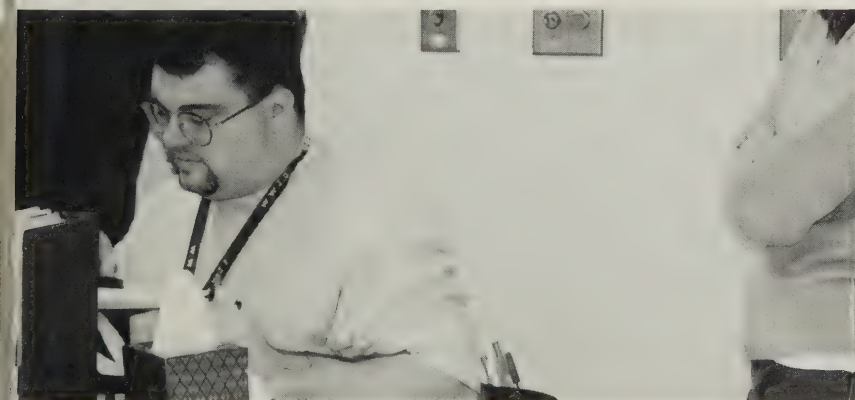

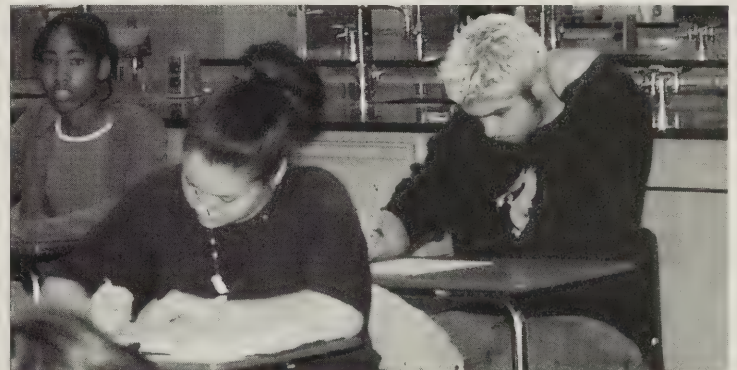

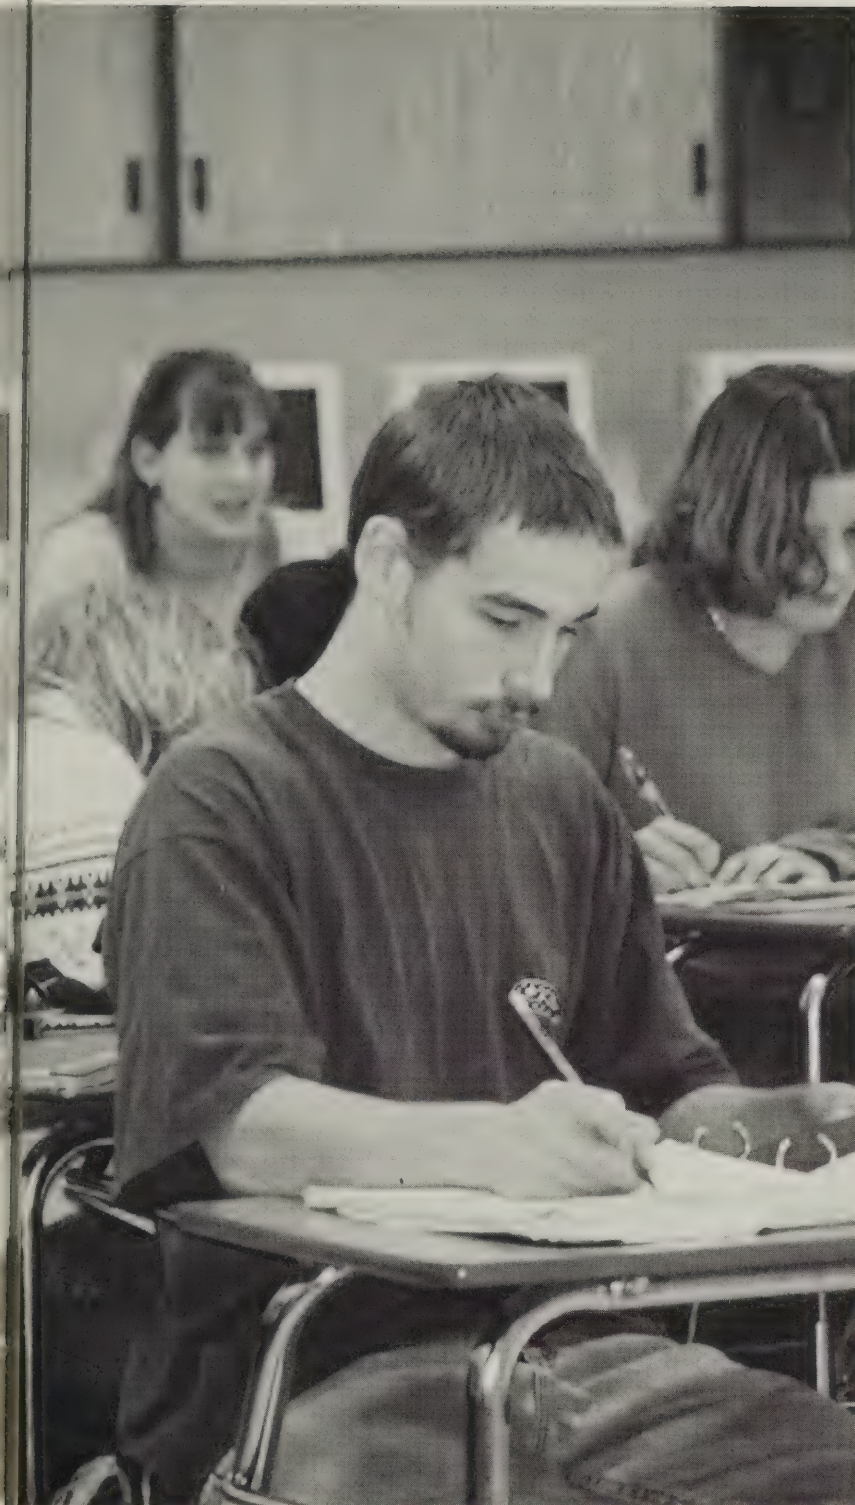

Math and Science go hand in hand. Many times if you were a math-oriented student you probably did much better in science than students who were not math oriented did. Math and science are two of the most concentrated subjects in high school.

According to Mrs. Gratzick, "Mathematics is the queen to science." The math department offered a variety of challenging classes. Courses ranged from integrated algebra and geometry to AP Calculus and Dual Enrollment Pre-calculus. Almost every job in today's world involves mathematics in some ways. By taking those classes we prepared ourselves for our future careers.

Science prepared us for the future. Science department head Mrs. Hallett said, "Knowledge is POWER." The more information we know about our selves and our environment the better we can understand how our environment effects us. Whether it be by balancing our check books or by treating an illness, the information we learned in math and science effect our daily lives. by Melissa Mullen GEOMETRY Some of Mr. Welch's Geometry students work on classwork he has assigned. Geometry is one of the most challenging math courses.

CHEM I! Chemistry I students work diligently to complete their class assignment. Chemistry is one of the science classes that is not required.

GET THOSE GRADES! A new teacher to Spotsy, Mr. Adkins calculates his students grades.

"I enjoy science because it gives you a chance to experiment and teach yourself what happens when you do certain experiments." Angie Robinson

"I like teaching because I like working with the kids and I have had so many good classes. I have always liked working with numbers. There are so many ways to do a problem!" Mrs. Cantwell

AP Courses

Imagine earning college credit for free in a highschool course! Thanks to Advanced Placement courses and pre-college courses that were offered you could earn up to a full semester's worth of college credit.

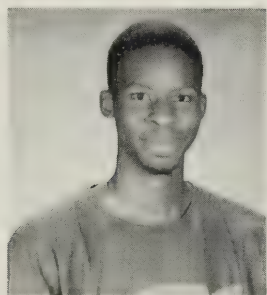

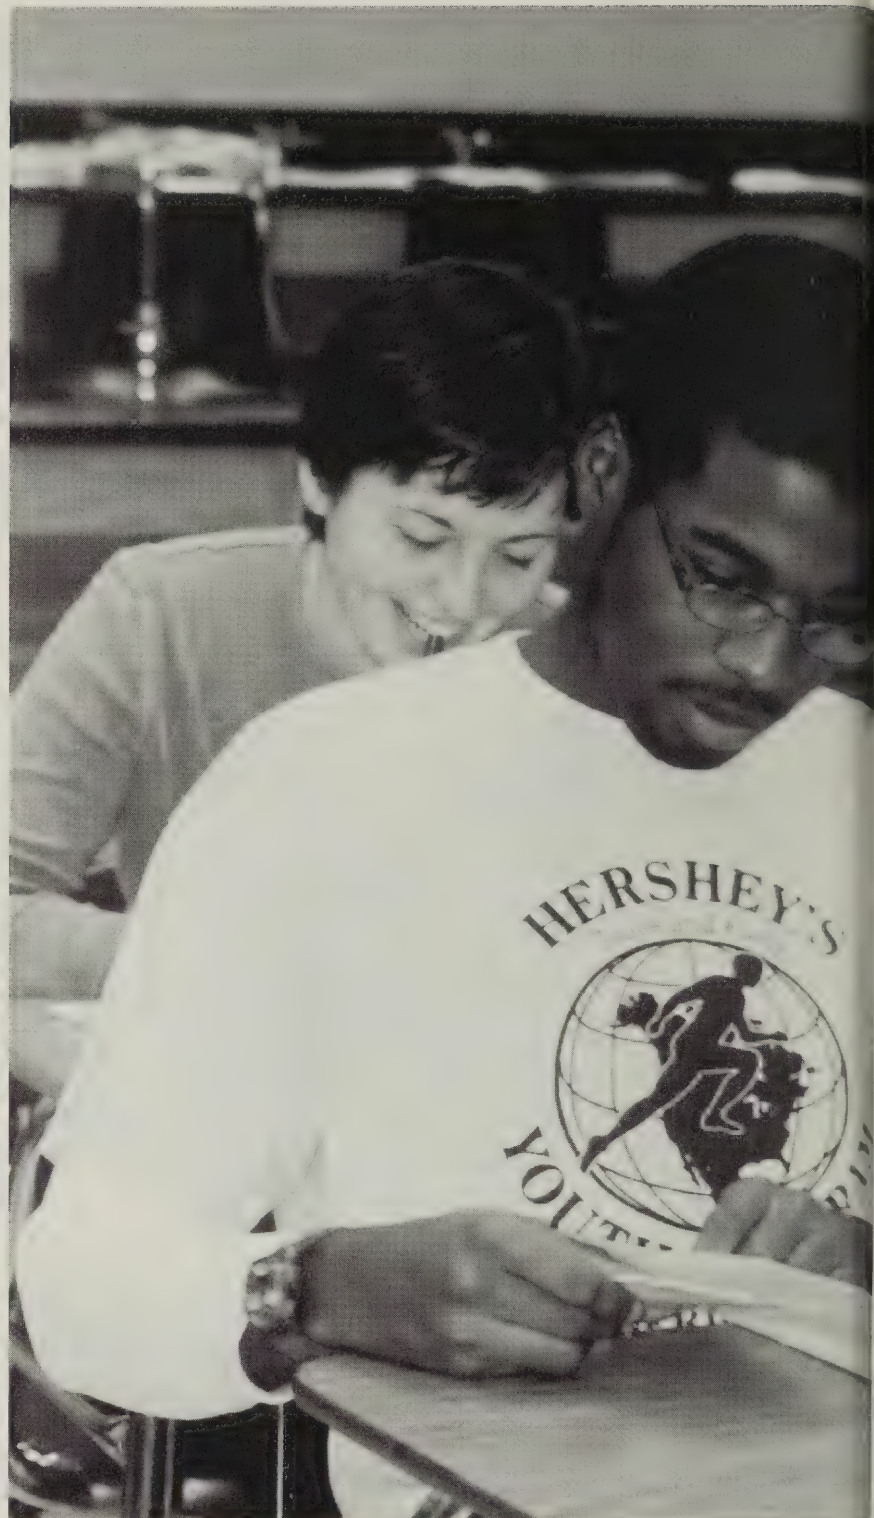

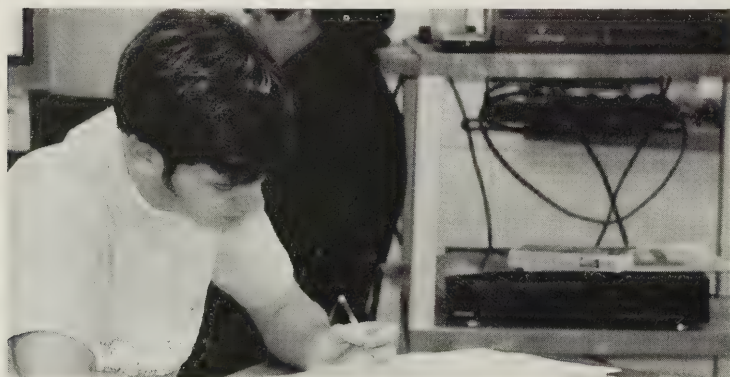

Though the work load was harder students took these extra burdens on to get free college credit. They had to love the topic, too. AP United States History teacher Mr. Larue said, "There is a lot more of the why instead of the what in AP courses, and the AP test itself is a good experience because it makes you think a lot and gets you ready for college."

Junior Will Belcher said, "I think the only reason students take Advanced Placement courses is to be prepared for college."

Junior Matthew Duke summed it up when he said, "AP courses look good on your college record."

WAS THAT DNA OR RNA? Junior Jimmy Kulina takes some notes in AP Biology. Kulina is the first junior who Mrs. Hallet has taught in AP Biology.

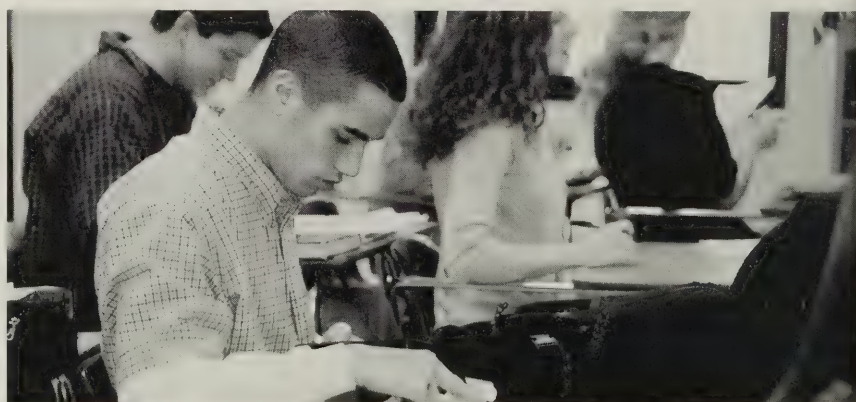

AP BIOLOGY! Adam Johnson, a senior reads during AP Biology class. Ap Biology is a 2 period class and is taught by Mrs. Barbara Hallet.

"AP US History is wild."
Edwin Burton

"AP students are expected to treat class as if it was a college class and need to take responsibility of their self. With just studying students could earn up to 6 hours of college credit." Amy Grubb

DOUBLE CHECK YOUR WORK! Senior Jason Kenawell revises his work before turning it in as a grade. Double checking work can always help your grade.

HARD AT WORK! Seniors Molly Porter and Lindsey Thacker finish up a quiz in Ap Government. Both Thacker and Porter are in multiple AP classes.

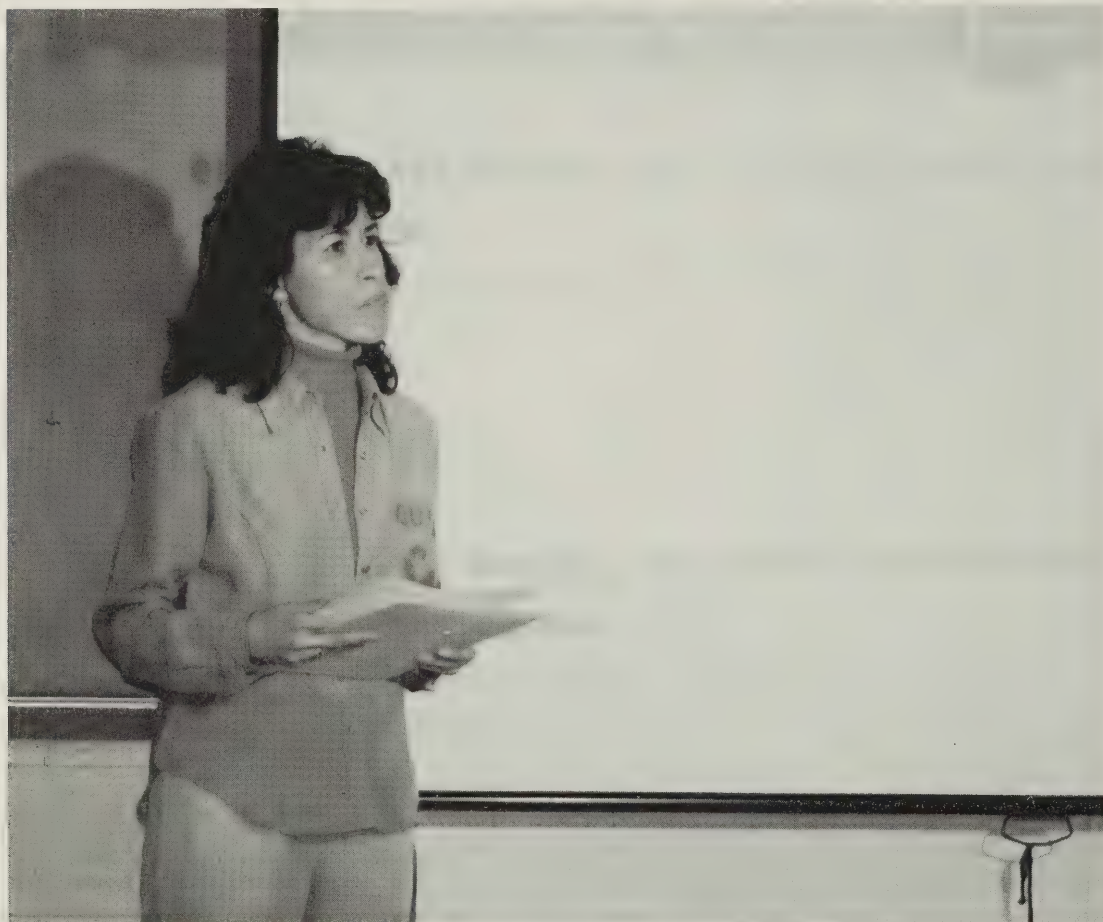

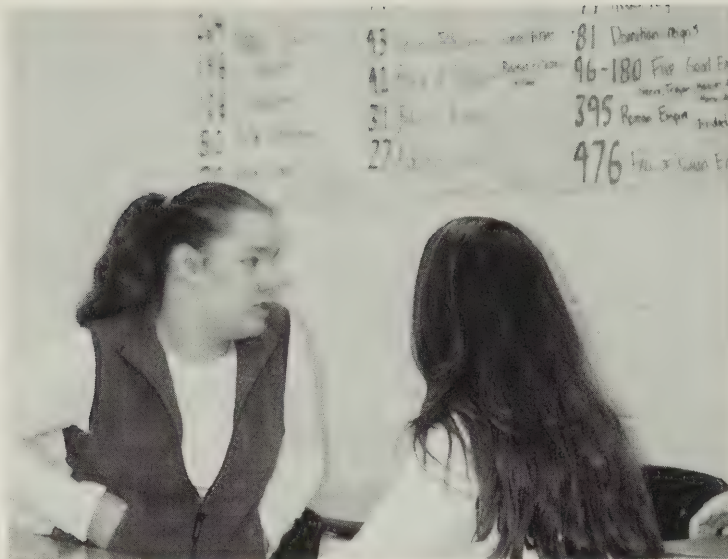

WATCH AND LEARN! Senior Sean Beaz works on the computer during AP Biology. Beaz also takes AP Government. He is among the many students who take multiple AP and college classes.

In AP Government seniors Amy Hutsell and Stephanie Miller look over papers that were recently given back. AP government as do all other AP college courses takes a lot of work however it pays off in the end.

NEWCOMERS! First year teacher Miss Cisneros teaches her Spanish Class their daily lesson.

Foreign Language

Salve, Hola, Bonjour...These are all great ways to greet your friends in foreign languages.

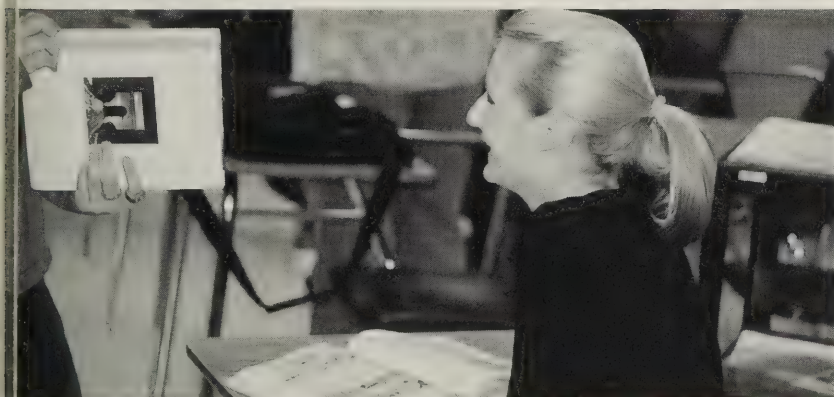

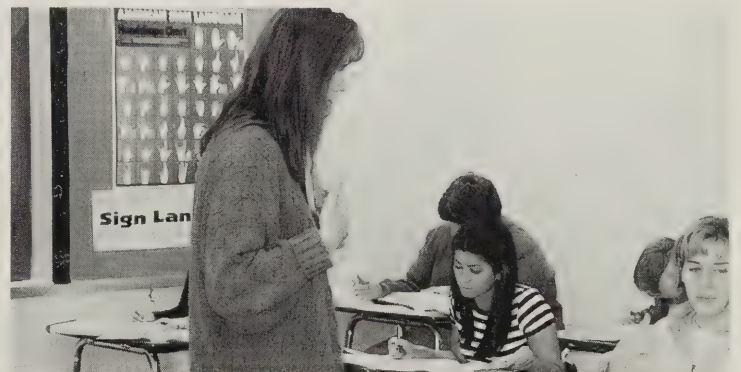

"Everyone should know their own language and another person's language. It broadens a person's perspective and makes the person more open to other people." said Spanish teacher Sandra Pickett. If we all spoke the same way, dressed the same way, and even ate the same way we would live in a very plain world.

Latin teacher Amy Grubb summed it up "Foreign languages are important because it gives you an opportunity to experience the world outside the one in which you live. It is important because it is the foundation of English and other modern languages."

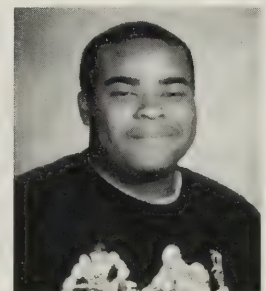

By Dylan Clipp

SINGING SONGS! Junior Jessica Spillman along with other sign language students, practice Christmas songs that they were going to sing.

IT'S A SIGN! Sign Language teacher Mrs. Young helps sophomore Jennifer Corbin out on a class assignment.

"I enjoy taking Latin because I like to learn about Mythology"
-Jessica Willis '02

"I take sign language so I can better communicate with my sister who is deaf."
-Devin Marshall '02

Electives

Through the elective courses offered you can learn how to take care of horses in Equine class, learn about the justice system in Criminal Justice class, and learn how to be a computer programmer in Computer Math classes.

Sophomore Geri Beth Davis said "I chose to take computer math because computer math gives me a chance to take programing classes while in school."

Sophomore Heather Gibson said about her band class, "I chose to take band class because band is the only true art."

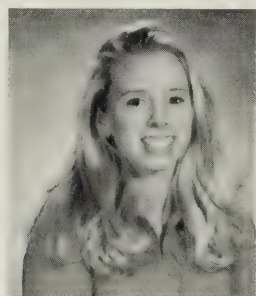

Some elective classes like debate and criminal justice are only semester courses. Other courses take longer to learn such as Bio 2 seminar, a two-period class that takes up a whole year. Whether students decide to take a class because they want to learn a trade or skill, they all enjoy there classes.

By Dylan Clipp

RIDE 'EM COWGIRL! Junior Wendy Batton rides her horse showing how to do gaits. Batton used her horse as part of presentation for her equine class.

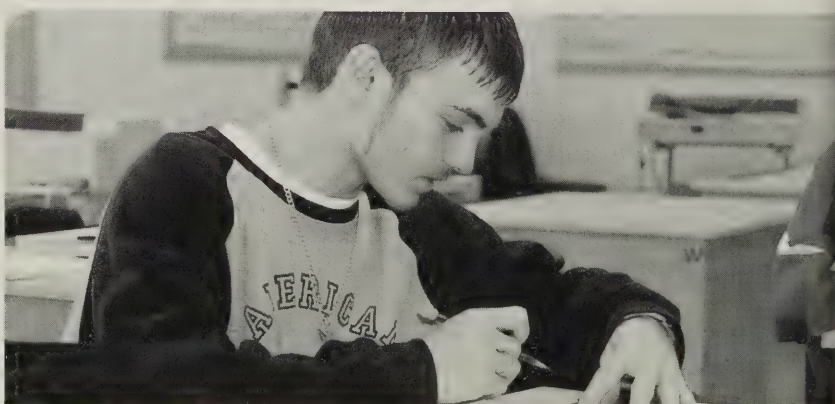

EEW, WHAT IS THAT? Biology II Seminar teacher Mrs. Kathrine Ciulla helps juniors Brandy Ryan and Rhonda Yon dissect their mudpuppy.

"I take SAT Prep so that when I take my SAT's the scores will be higher." Chasity Hall

"I took Psychology because that's what I'm thinking of majoring in." Melanie Rosser

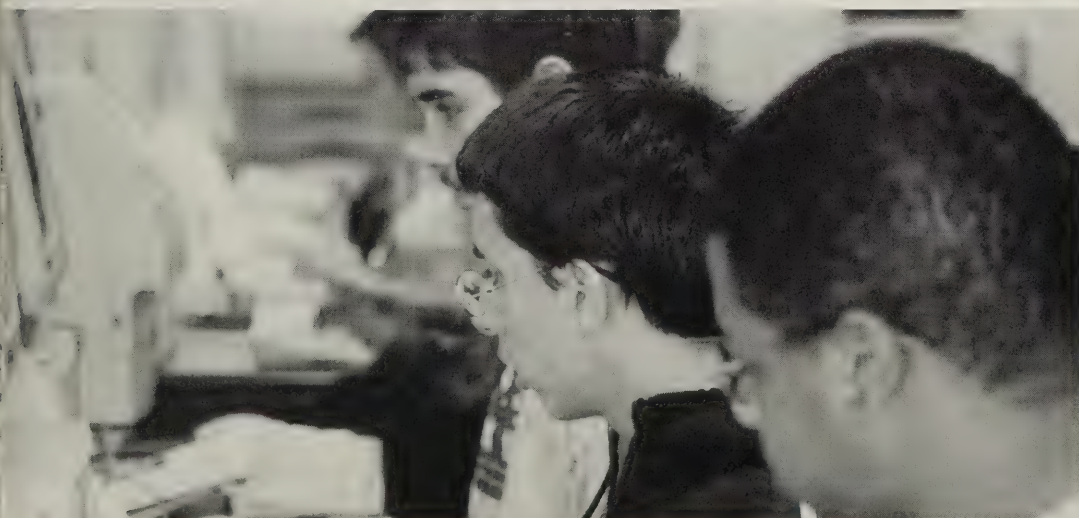

YOUR CHOICE! Basic technical drawing student, freshman Gabriel Timis works on a drafti assignment. Students are able to chose at least one class they want to take each year.

GROSS! Junior Megan Owens cuts open her mudpuppy in Biology II Seminar. The Bio II Seminar class dissects anything and everything, from a snake to a house cat.

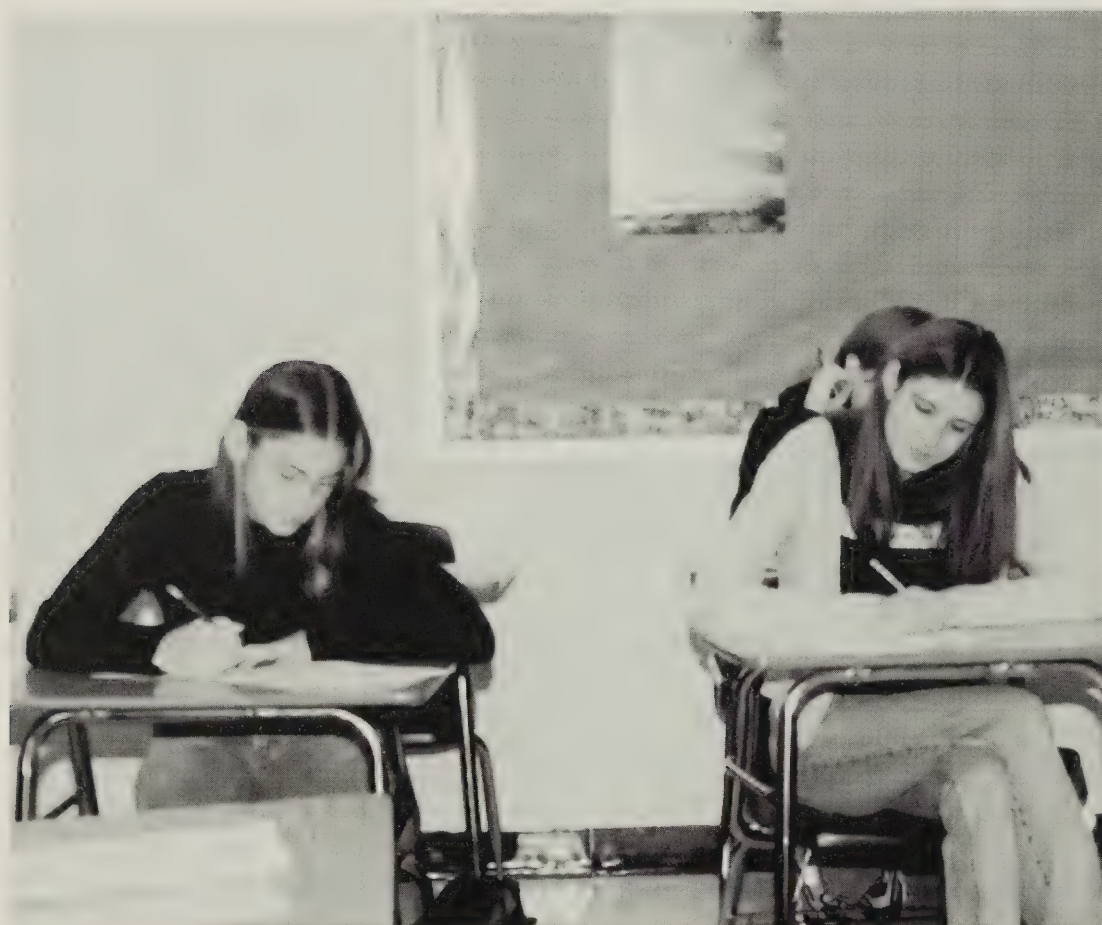

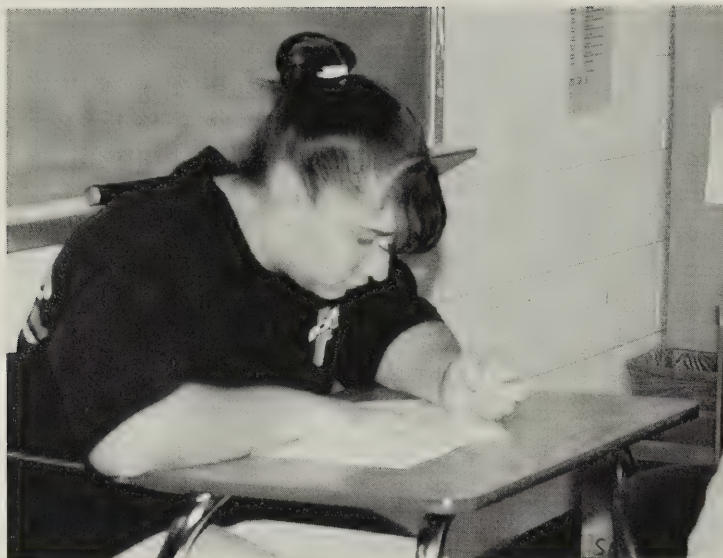

ELECT YOUR CLASS! Equine class members sophomore Andrew Wheeler and Rene Atchison do a presentation on grooming a horse.

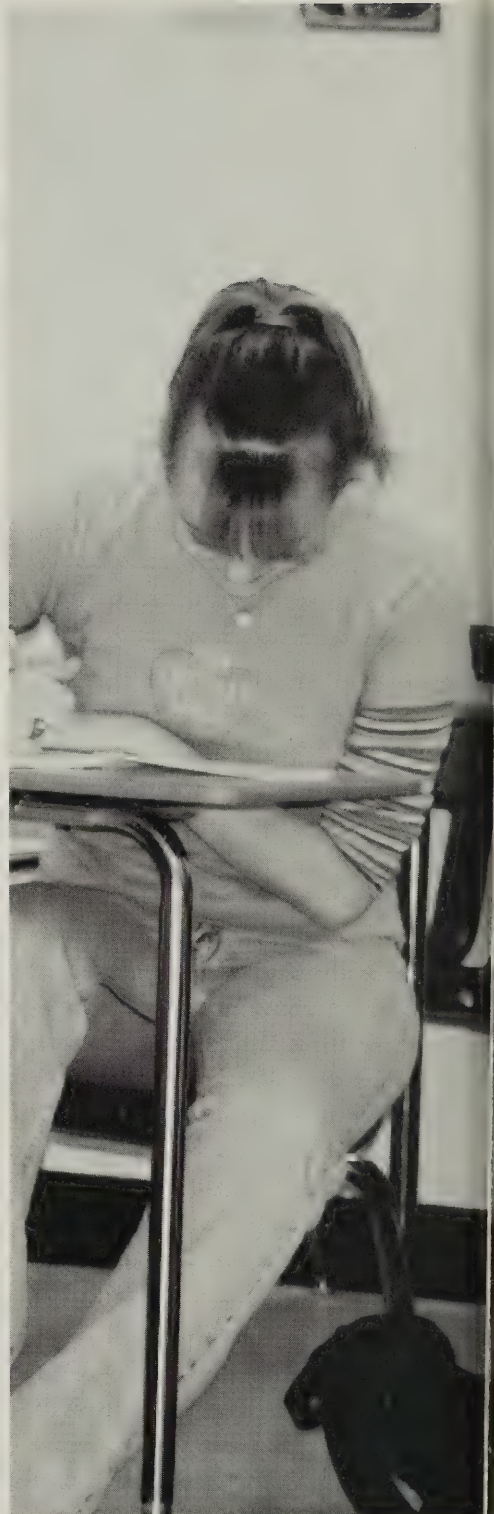

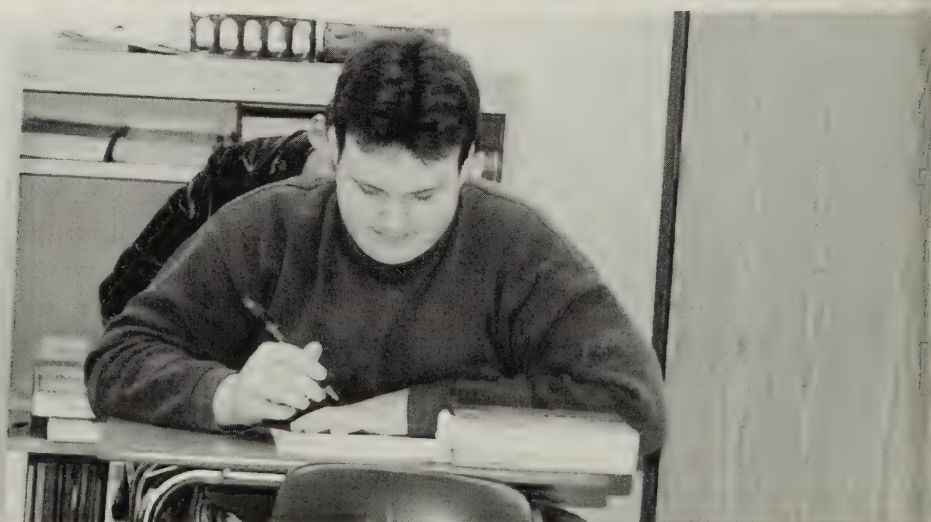

TYPING THE DAY AWAY! During computer application class freshman David Flowers completes class assignment. There are many computer classes offered as elective courses.

EXPECTATIONS. Junior Tonya Wood works hard in Mrs. Fellingner's Advanced English class. She has to work hard to live up to her older brother Michael Wood's expectations.

TESTS. Juniors Jenny Sorenson and Jessica Berryman concentrate on their English test. English tests can be difficult because there is so much included that you have to remember.

THINK. Junior David McDonald looks at his assignment as he tries to figure out what his teacher wants him to do. In Mr. Sellers' English class you are taught to think for yourself and use both sides of your brain.

English

Writing never seemed to get easier, no matter how many English classes we took. English was a course that challenged your mind no matter what..

Junior Jacob Lane said, "My biggest challenge would be when I wrote my essay on Romanticism. This essay was such a challenge because I had to study a whole new way of English and writing styles."

"I like English because we get to read a lot of books," said sophomore Erin Karlinsky.

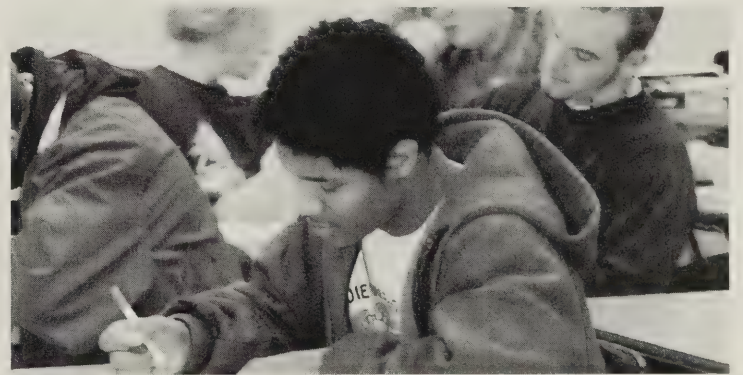

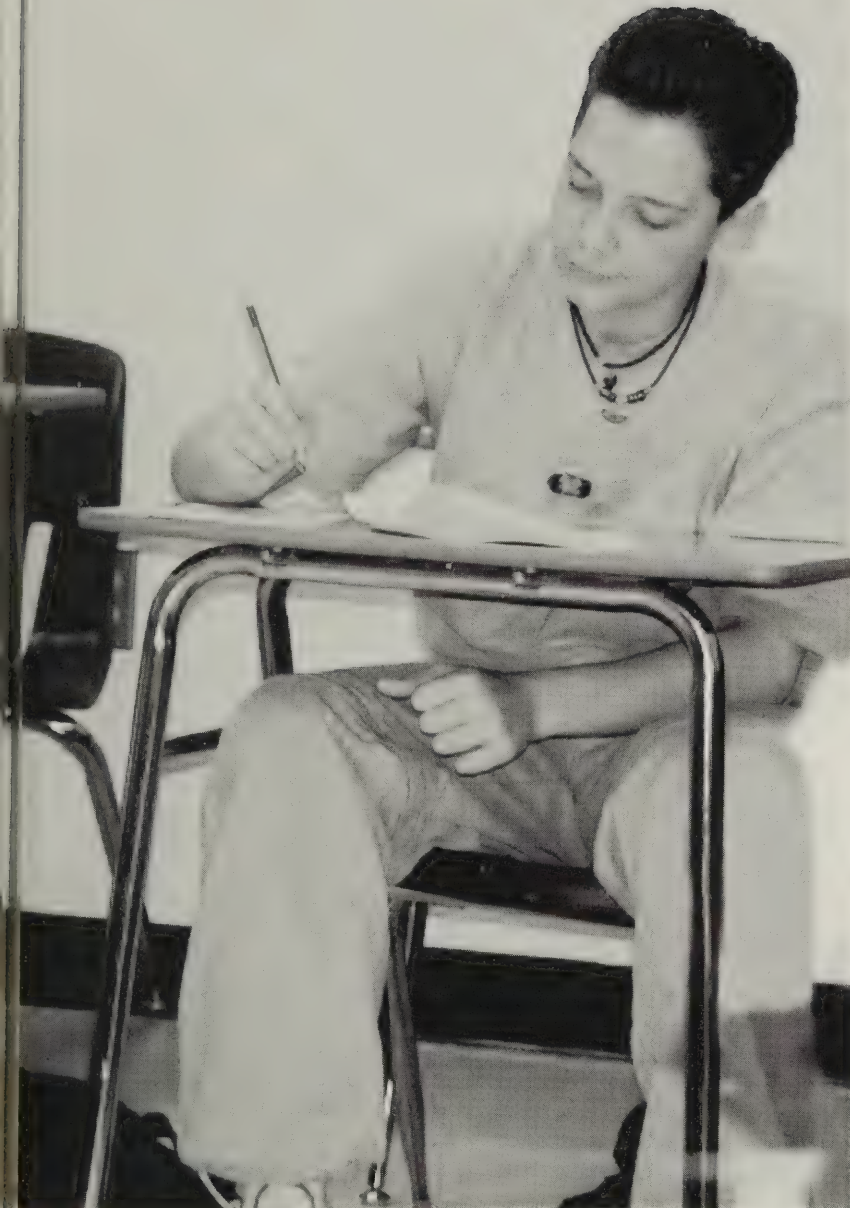

English challenged students every day of their lives. They were challenged in reading and writing. "The greatest book we read this year would be How to Kill a Mocking Bird," said sophomore Allisa Cassucio.

Some times the challenge was more than the reading and writing. English forced us to think for ourselves. "Even though Mrs. Gompf makes me angry sometimes, she always ends up teaching me something by the end of class," Francis Scott said. Looking for the grade was the hardest thing to do but by the end we all acheived it.

By Jennifer Chamberlain

REMEMBER. Juniors Chrissy Williams and Phillip Leonhart try to remember what happened in the novel they read.

POP QUIZ. Those are the words every student dreads. Junior Antron Minor work on a pop quiz.

"I enjoy English because I am exposed to many different types and styles of literature."-Junior Lindsey Fletcher

"English aint my bestest subject but im gettin gooder at it everyday"-Junior Liz Hayes

IDEAS. Before Junior Lindsay Jones loses her idea in English class, she writes it down as fast as she can. 11th grade English teachers work their students hard to prepare them for their last year of english.

Fine Arts

It looked like a regular classroom...a teacher, chairs, and a chalkboard. But this class was very different from the others in our school. This was a Fine Arts classroom, away from the academic grind and the rigidity of grade-oriented classes.

Whether it was with the songs from band, or in the theater with Drama, the students in the Arts were free to explore and polish their talents.

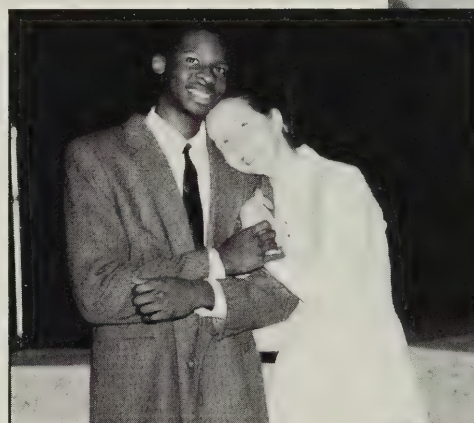

These classes were havens, places where we could escape and experience a more natural form of learning. The work was an expression of ourselves and helped us discover who we were. In the end the Fine Arts classes were an oasis of creative thought.

Art as we see it

THE FIRST IN YEARS! Junior baton twirler Danielle Koslowski smiles during a performance for the marching band, she is the first baton twirler in several years.

ART CONCENTRATION! Art student senior Lindsey Merriman focuses on her art assignment during class. She has taken art for a couple years and knows it's hard work.

PLAY ON! Sophomore Marcus Curtis, senior Philip Blake and freshman John Delaney, turn a page of their music while playing a band tune. All three of the saxophone players were in marching band together and know how to play together.

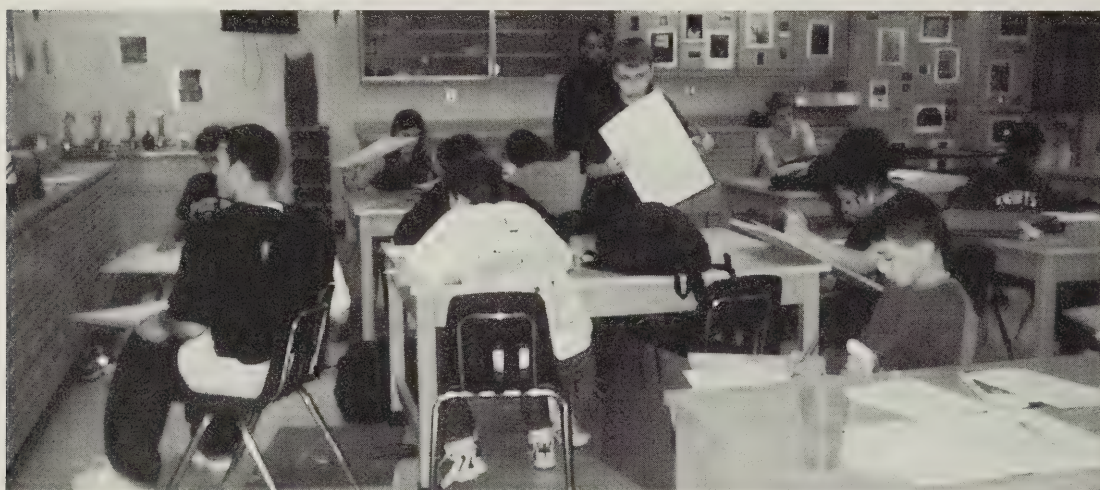

Art

What do drawings, sketches, paintings, and socialization have in common? They were all activities that students participated in during their art classes.

Students who took art made their decision based on what they were interested in and on what their friends were taking. Freshman Ashley Heflin, an Art I student said, "I like to draw, and I wanted to learn more on how to draw details. I also wanted to become a better artist." Freshman Chrissy Newton, another Art I student, said the reason she took art was, "I like to draw. I also took this class because some of my friends are taking it."

Expressing individuality was also another key reason why students took art. Sophomore Aaron Heflin, an Art I student, expressed his reasons on why he took art. "I thought that it would be a really interesting class; it turns out that it really was. I learned a lot of things during the school year, and I was able to increase my talent," Heflin said.

By: Emma Jo Williams

CLASS ART

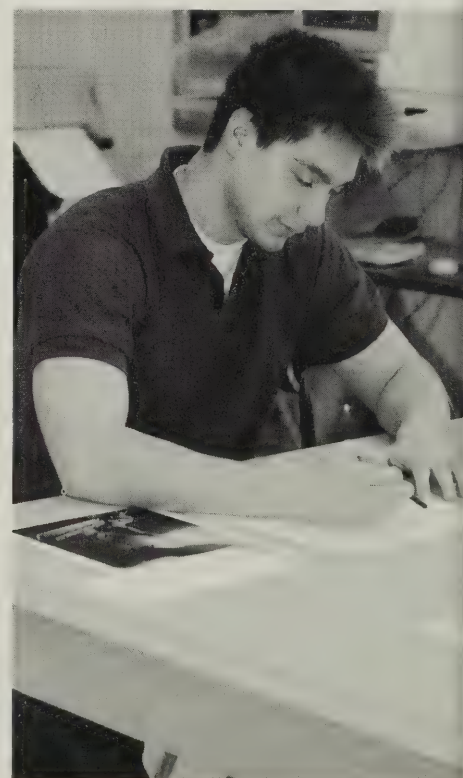

This first year art class draws a still picture of several objects. Every year many students sign up for art and stick with it for several years.

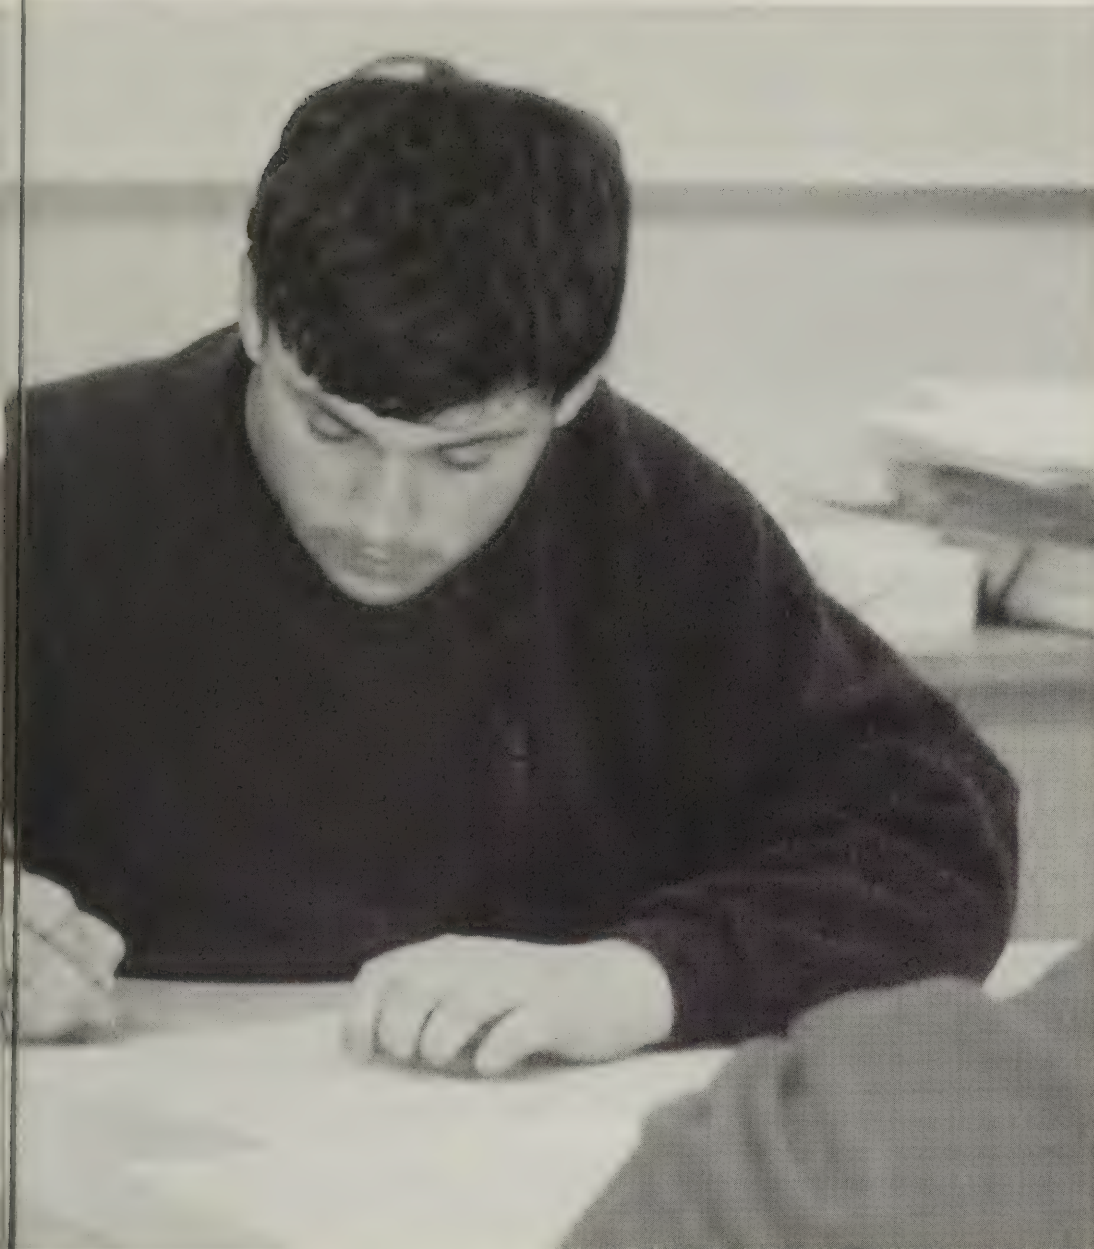

ART TALENT

Senior Ashley Yau concentrates hard on her chosen picture and draws it to the best of her ability. Ashley won the senior superlative for most artistic.

LOVING ART! Senior Chris Echols works on his art project during his second year art class. Chris truly enjoys art, that's why he was voted most artistic male of the senior class.

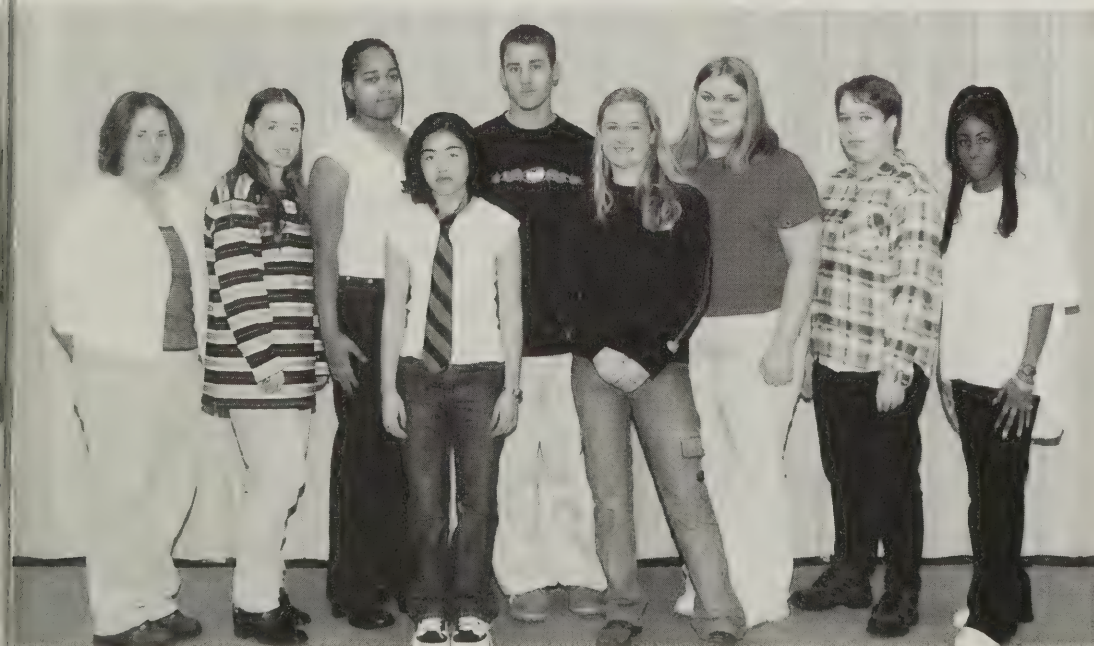

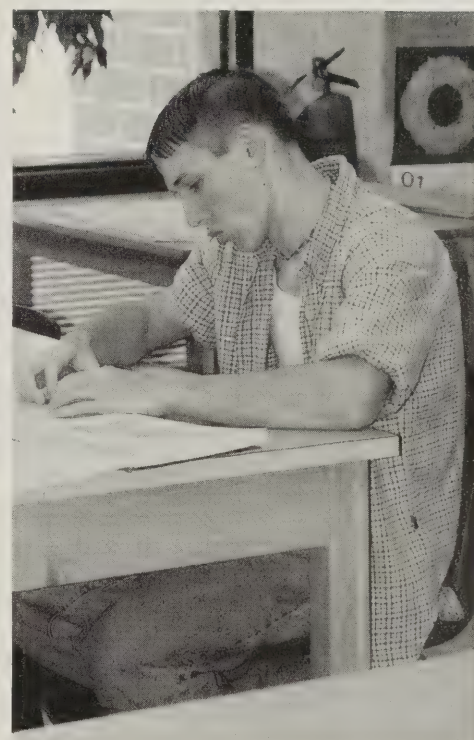

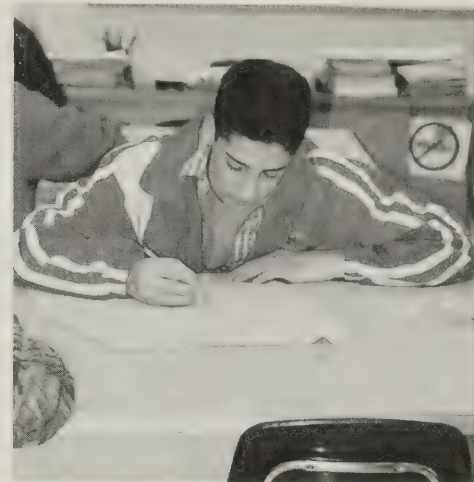

SKETCHING

Junior Jason Woofrey starts to sketch his drawing at the beginning of class. Many art students have Ms. Pitts for an Art teacher and enjoy her greatly.

ART TAKES TIME

NATIONAL ART HONOR SOCIETY

SECOND YEAR ART STUDENT

SITTING TALL Junior Melanie Rosser sits up straight during class warm ups so the pitches come out right. Posture is an important factor in chorus.

CLASS ACTION

In Mr. Fox's chorus classes you not only sing but you have to keep rythm as well, like Sarah Henry, Deanna Current, Ashley Godley.

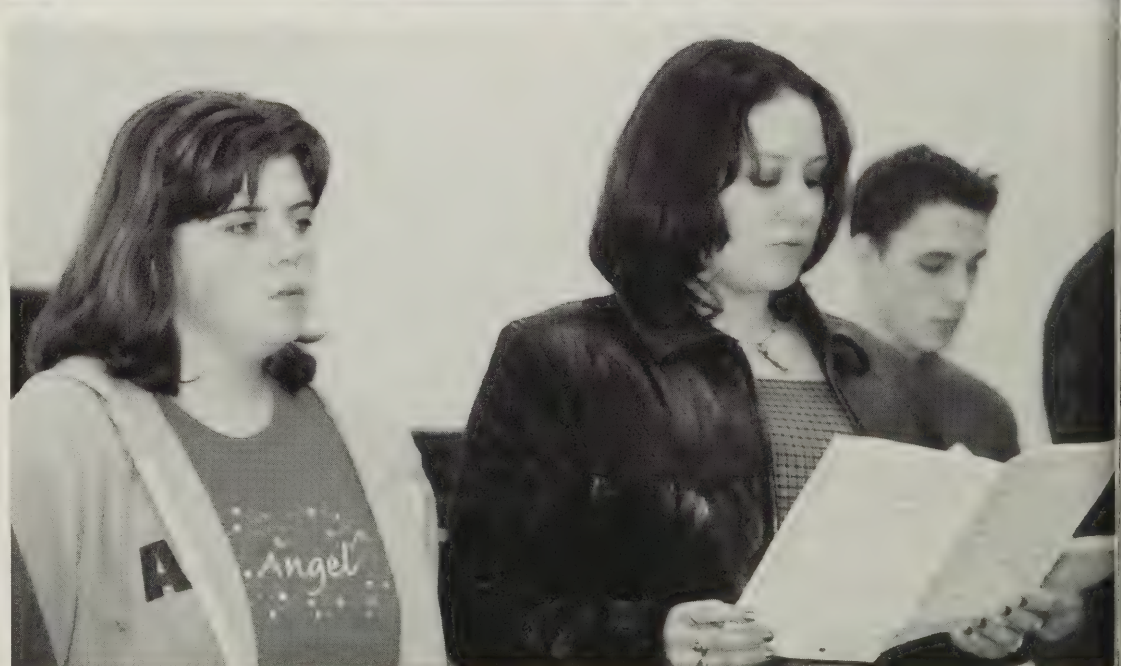

MALE SINGERS

Chorus classes have never had a great turnout of male singers, but Christain James and Chris Hall know that their voices are needed for the Advanced Chorus.

THREE YEAR CHOIR MEMBERS

Juniors Angelica Seamen and Candice Miller sing there parts in class because they know every voice counts.

Chorus

Chorus was an exciting way for kids to meet other kids who liked to sing. They competed, traveled, and had fun the whole time.

Chorus members practiced a lot. Heather Cropp said, "We have to work hard so when we try out for all county chorus we can do good."

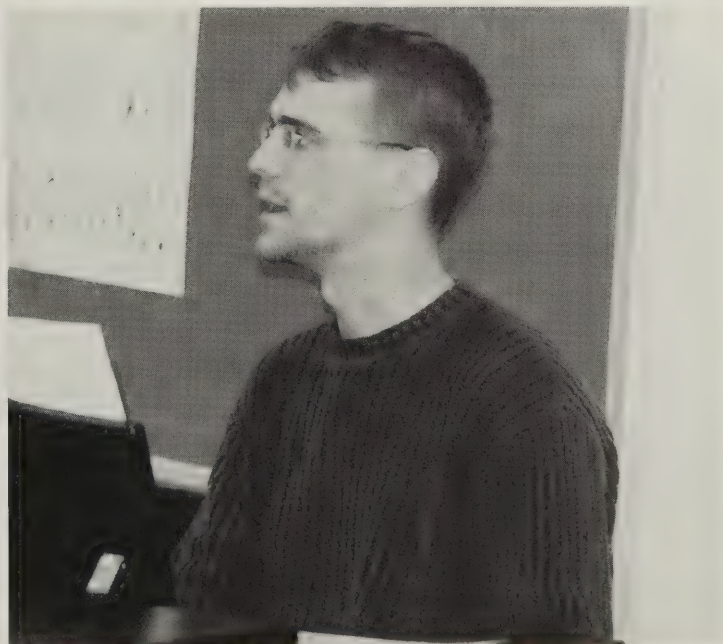

A good thing about being in something like chorus was that you got to meet people who enjoyed doing the same thing as you. Chorus members made lasting friendships that they would not have made if it wasn't for the hours they spent together in chorus.

Chorus students had a lot of talent this year and they have special memories and friendships from the time they spent together.

By David Tignor

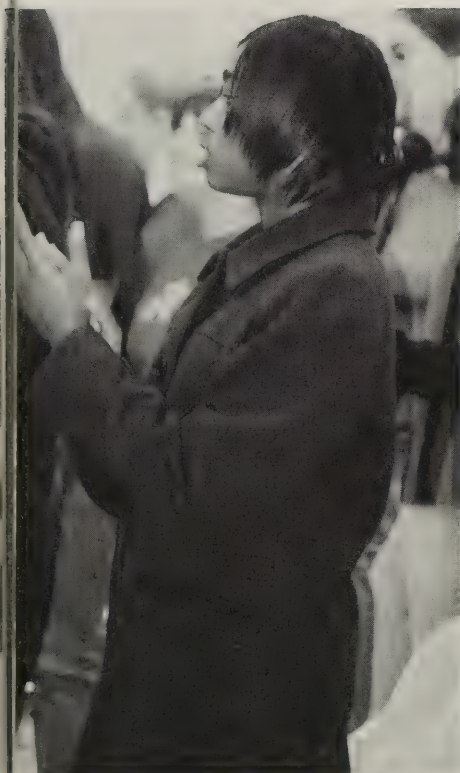

SINGING WARM-UP
Advanced chorus members Magan Slingerland, Jenni Pascal, and Johnna Pucket pay attention to their director as they sing their warm ups.

DIRECTING THE CHOIR The chorus teacher Mr. Fox sings along and plays the piano while watching his students sing their hearts out.

KEEPING THE RYTHEM Advanced Chorus member Stephanie Kinard shows her talent is more than just singing by keeping the rhythm with Mr. Fox as well.

Drama

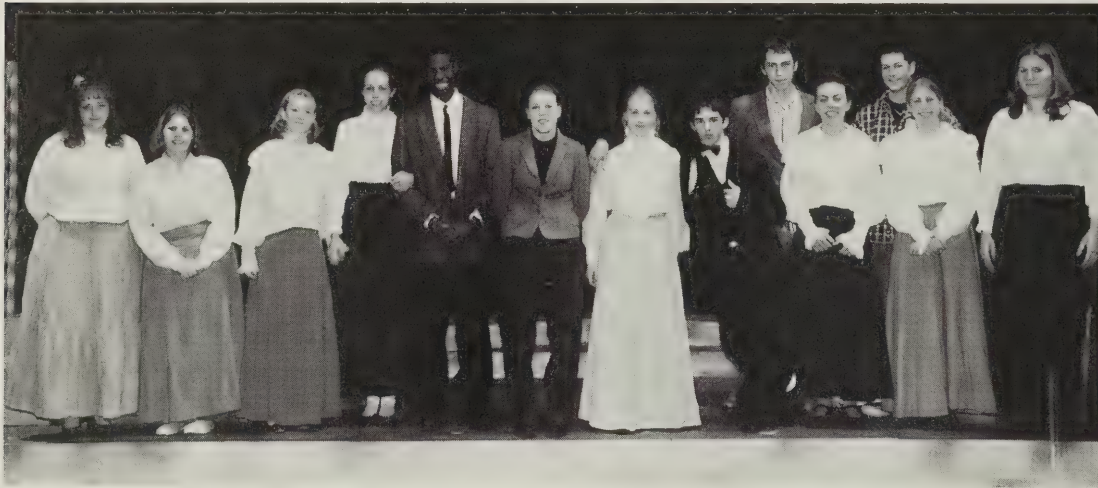

Take a glimpse of what drama was about. You could show more than just your knowlege, and show who you really were and all your talent. Drama was a class where you cacould express yourself and your feeling without being embarresed.

Drama included many activities outside of the classroom, including plays, field trips to New York City, workshops, and competitions. If you liked to participate in plays but not actually act on stage there were many other rolls to fill backstage, such as assitant manager, student directors, prop crew, and production crew.

Andy Rafford, an active Drama student, said "I took drama because I enjoy theater and drama because it gives me the chance to be funny, angry, sad, happy as possible because it's part of my character. You can never over do things on stage. One of the best things about theater arts is the people. You will never find a bunch of friends in which to spend your time with."

Jason Kennedy played the main roll in the play Once on this Island. Kennedy said "My favorite part of doing this show was getting to know everyone in it." Meeting new people is another great aspect of taking drama. There are many other things that drama/ theater has to offer. Everyone should experience these types of things.

By Lora Jewell

ENCORE

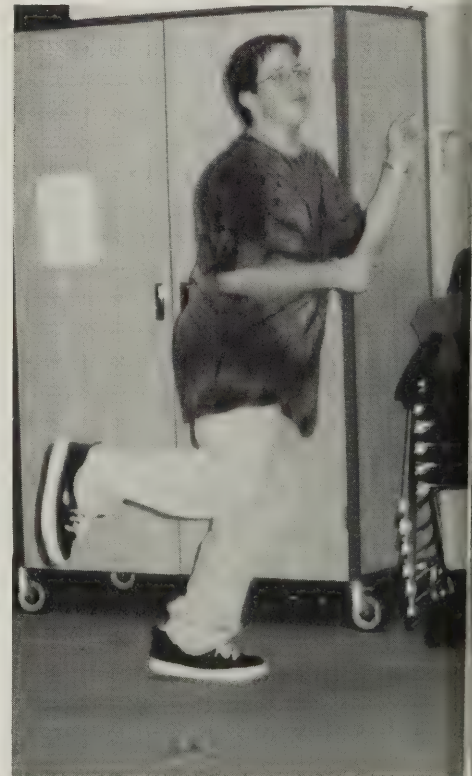

The third year drama class smiles for a photo after putting on the play called "Our Town".

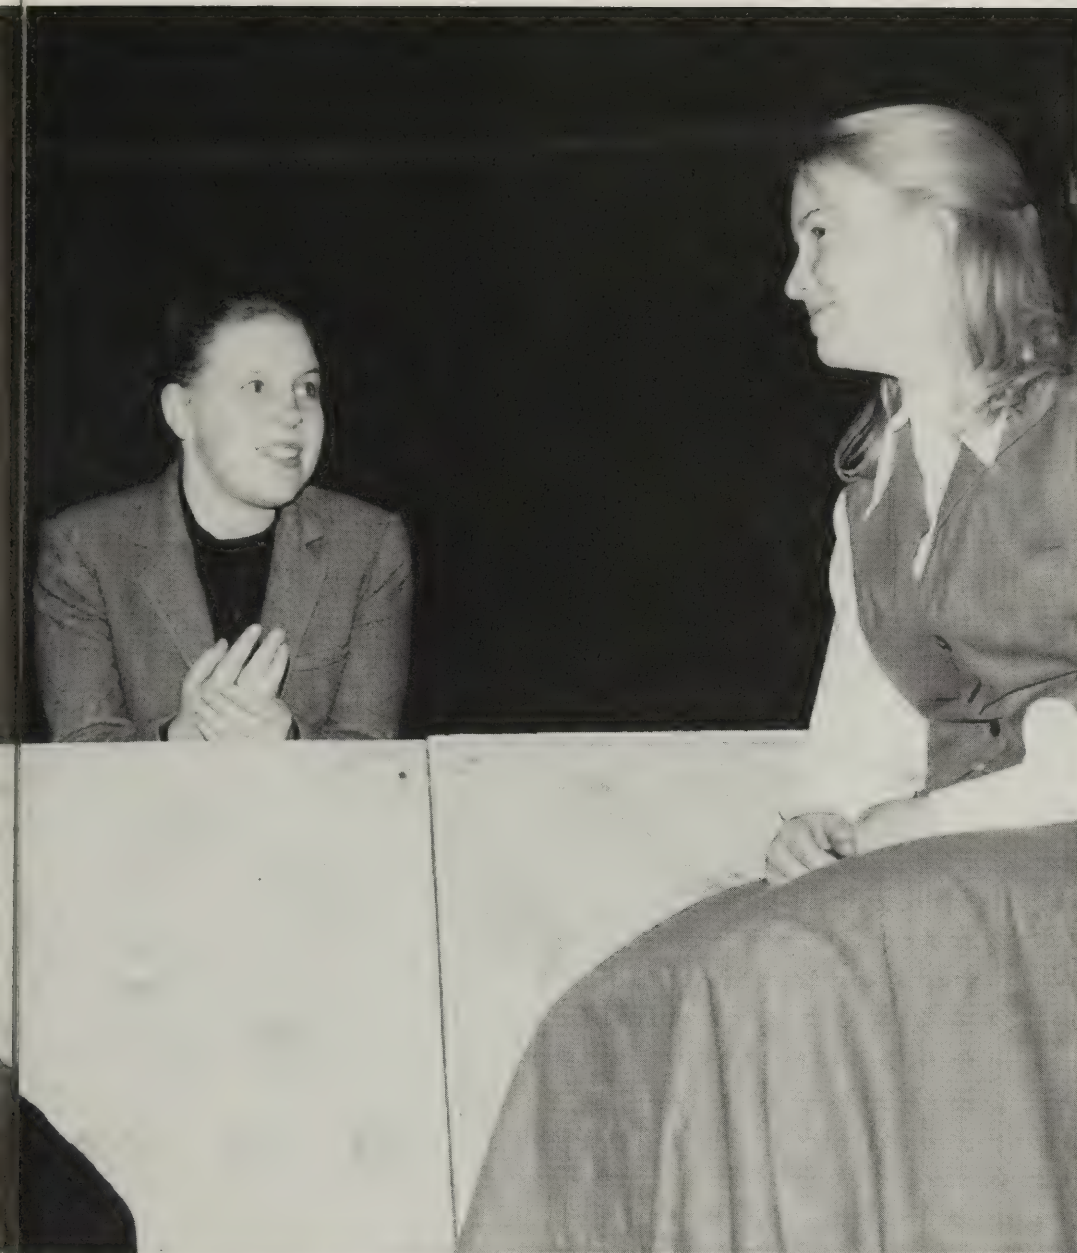

HOLDING IT TOGETHER Rebecca Powell is a second year Drama student with Mr. Fox, she helps put up a wall for the play "Once On This Island".

PLAYING AROUND

Freshmen Travis Morgan shows how much he loves to be silly when the first year drama students learn new dance moves.

MARRY ME

In the play "Our Town" put on by the third year drama class, the characters played by Josh Smith, Missy Waida and Molly Gilliland wait for Josh to pop the big question to Molly.

POWER

Mr. Fox's second year student Alli Vancleave helps create the set for one of the school plays during her class.

WHAT A WEEKEND!

A group of chosen drama students smile for a picture on a drama trip to Virginia Theatre Associations. Every year this trip allows students to compete in play competitions, single competitions and to apply for college scholarships.

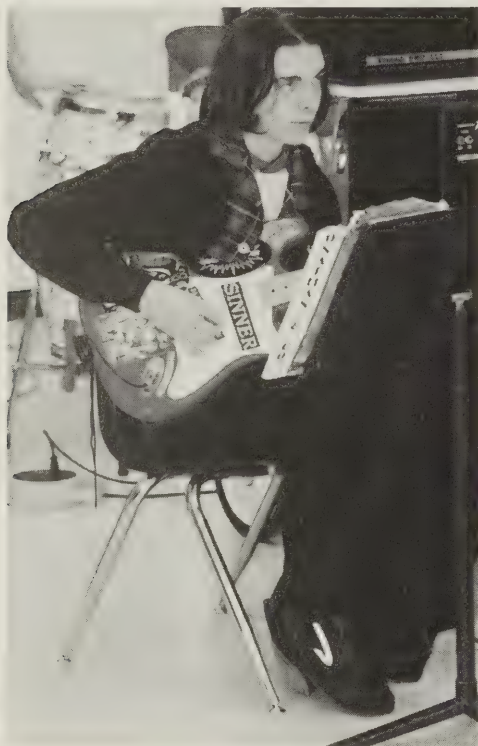

TEACHER'S PET!

Freshmen Stephanie Bridges and Drama teacher Mrs. Hansen have fun learning new dance steps during class.

MAKING NOISE

Freshman Katie Sandage plays her warm ups in class to tune up her trumpet in jazz band.

JAMMING

Junior Jazz band member Andrew Gregory plays his guitar during class. He also plays in his own band some nights.

SAXOPHONE TRI-O

Concert band members Courtney Forgot, Nicholas Volten, and Josh Arrazate play blow in their saxophones hard and think of the notes they are playing.

KEEPING THE BEAT

The Drummers in Concert band, Justin Richardson, Marcus Lamb, Jeremiah Gardener, and David Barrea keep the beat for the rest of the band during class.

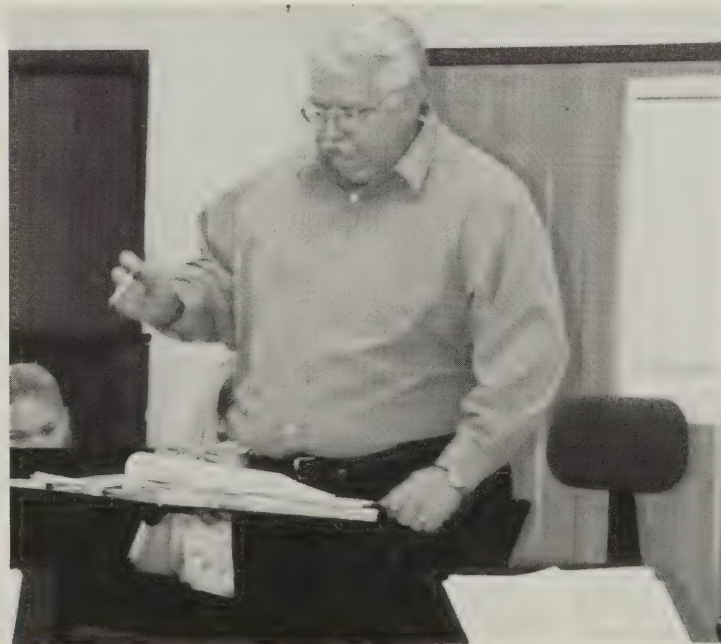

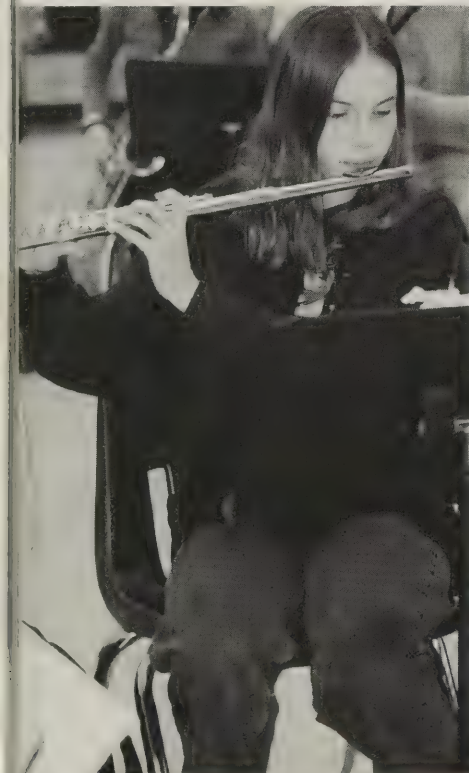

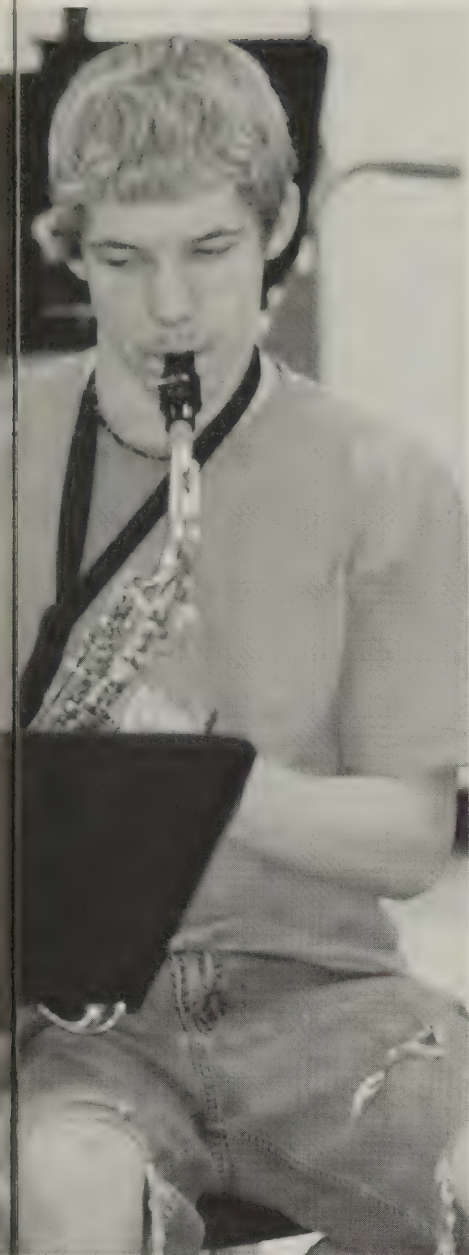

CONCERT BAND

Have you ever been to a concert? How about one of Spotsy's concerts? If so you may have noticed how well it was put together. Spotsy offered a course specializing in music of the arts this past year, and many students took advantage of the chance to showcase their talents.

Putting on a concert is hard work; just ask any member of Concert Band. Making sure everyone knew their part was a major deal when it came to show time, and solos were nerve wrecking enough. If students failed to practice they held the band back as a whole from achieving their goals.

Overall Concert Band members and Mr. Pomerleau worked diligently in fourth period throughout the year and have accomplished a great deal since September of 2000.

By Christy Bishop

PLAY ON! During concert band class Terryng Wingler and Tabitha Krieglstien play together and concentrating on staying in the same pitch

Mr. Pomerleau other wise none as Mr. P stands in front of the students instructing them on when to play there instruments.

SYMPHONIC & JAZZ BAND

Spotsy's symphonic and jazz band finish of the final measure with crystalline brilliance. The judges and audience are astounded. As they each take home a first place trophy, they know they made Spotsy proud.

Symphonic Band works hard to perfect pieces of music. Members like Freshman Tuba player Nick Messer practice hard every day to master their latest music. They go to festivals to test their talents against other competitive schools. Messer said, "I can't wait until we possibly go to Washington to play at the Kennedy Center." Many of the players in our elite Symphonic Band had aspirations to play professionally, and with the talent at Spotsy, this seems very possible.

The Jazz band plays a more modern, contemporary form of music. With many brass and percussion instruments, like Freshman trombonist John Delaney, the sound is just as pleasing to the ear as that of the symphonic band. Delaney said, "I really enjoy the program, it's fun." The Jazz Band goes to festivals and competitions to evaluate their status among other schools.

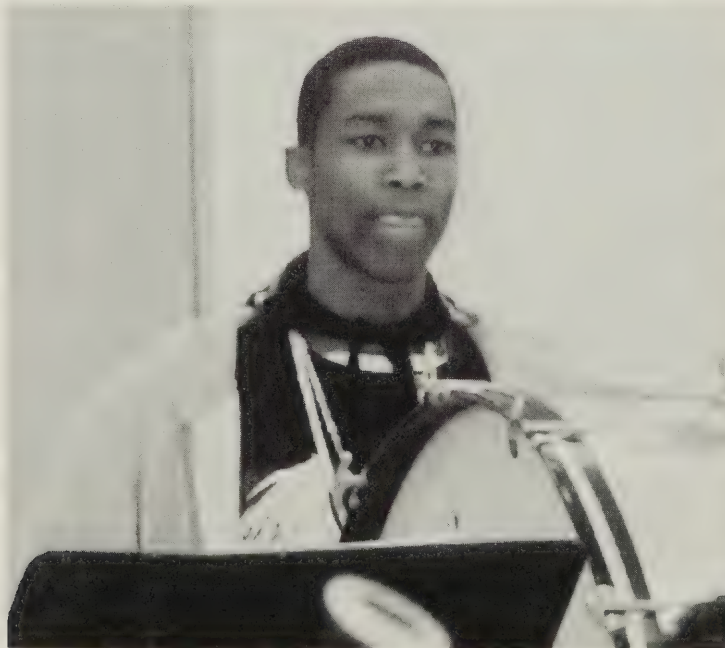

The Jazz and Symphonic bands are intended to hone in on a player's specific musical talents. Instead of playing all different types of music, a student can choose what type he or she likes or is good at and work more on that type. "It's a positive program," says Messer. And that it is, according to most of its members.

By Eric Karlinsky

PLAY! Symphonic band member Crystal Taylor checks out her music sheet as she prepares to play the Xylophone.

DRUMMING! Watching the director a junior drummer concentrates very hard to hit the drum in the right spot.

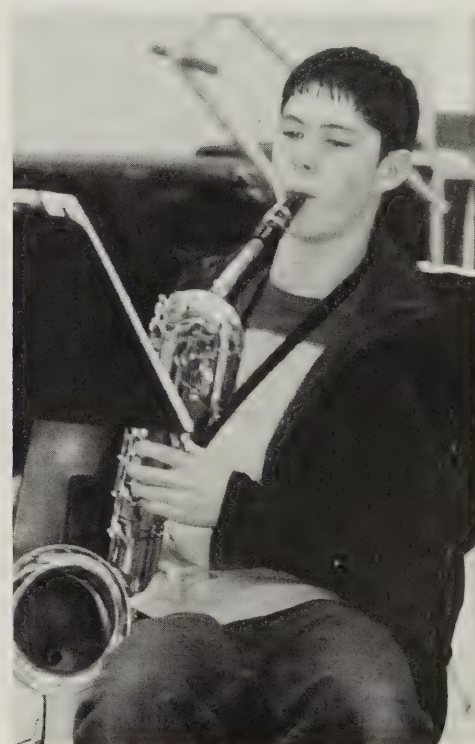

A DIFFERENT HORN! The bassoon is one of the instruments not likely found in high school bands. But Kerri Scala proves that our symphonic band is well balanced and versatile.

MUSIC TIME! Junior Erin Wolfrey practices her piccolo during band class.

CHANGING INSTRUMENTS! Jazz Band is a change for senior Micheal Wood while he plays his trombone, because for marching band he plays the sousaphone.

FRESHMAN FLUTES! Best friends Jessica Boggs and Maryann Goodman carry a tune with their chosen instrument the flute. They have been playing together for years.

ALL THAT JAZZ! Junior Chris Wheelis enjoys playing his Baritone Sax during jazz band as well as in marching band.

TROMBONE!
Sophomore Heather Gibson slides in style at the pep rally to get the crowd riled up.

THREE OF A KIND!

SAXOPHONE! Junior Abigail Jennings plays her saxophone during a marching band half time show performance.

TRADITION! Sophomores Megan Westwood, Alicia Williams and fellow band members play a song during a football game. It is a marching band tradition to sit and cheer in the stands.

Marching Band

Through rain and snow, in the heat of day or the dark of night. During the losses and wins, triumphs and upsets the Marching Band has always been there. Marching Band created a "theatrical show which includes marching and music", said sophomore Megan Westwood. Marching Band has always been at the sport events, providing entertainment and pep to the spectators and players.

Preparation for individual games included a lot of work. "Lot's and lot's of hard work and practice went into every game," said sophomore Marcus Lamm. Marching Band did more than just practice and perform in summer and three days a week. The band travelled around the state and even to Florida for competitions. Despite the loom of hard work many people entered Marching Band, they each came for different reasons. "I always liked music and I wanted to meet to new people as a freshman," said senior Michael Wood.

In the end all of Marching Band were better for their experiences. "It taught me how to control myself and gave me a respect for authority," said Lamm.

"It got me to be more social," said Wood.

By furthering their own musical talents and aspirations, the Marching Band contributed to the school as a whole. Whether it was rallying the team after a bad first half, or winning a competition, Marching Band was an important part of our school.

By Casey Pfitzner

MARCH! The marching band waits to go onto the field to perform the half time show.

CIRCLE UP! Saxophone players stand in a semi-circle as they play for the plans.

STANDING TALL! Sophomore Bambi VanHouten stands straight and tall as she plays the trumpet. This is Van Houten's second year in the marching band.

Clubs

Being in a club was a good way to learn new things and to make friends. Clubs provided students with a safe learning environment that allowed them to participate in different subjects and events,

Fundraisers, dances, and field trips, were just a few of the many events that members participated in. Projects raised money for local charities, organizations, and to meet the needs for their clubs.

When we became a part of a club, we not only learned the basics, we learned to work as a whole. Senior Jamie Jefferson said, "The reason why I participate in club activities and why most students do, is because the clubs give students the opportunity to get involved in the community, which is something they wouldn't usually do."

SHOWIN' OFF! FBLA members participate in a regional competition at Germanna.

FBLA

FUTURE BUSINESS LEADERS OF AMERICA

The Future Business Leaders of America helped students develop knowledge of business qualities in its members. It also encouraged its members to participate in competitions, and to set and achieve their goals. The FBLA enhanced its members with the important skills used in today's business occupations and also with many entrepreneurs.

Members who participated in this club met professional business leaders who talked to them about the business field. They gained a knowledge and better understanding about the field.

"I love working with FBLA students, going to regional and state conferences and seeing the students explore business activities outside of Spotsy High," said FBLA Sponsor Mrs. Baker.

Sophomore Matthew Freeman said, "FBLA is a career enhancing organization for which I am proud to be a part of." For most members of The Future Business Leaders of America Club this was a fun and exciting way to explore the business community. It provided them with skills and knowledge needed to survive.

By Crystal Hess

PARADE! During the Homecoming parade, FBLA members Angela Jackson, Crystal Hense, and a younger brother all support the club on their Homecoming float.

WORKING HARD! Senior Nicole Criste is a member of the FBLA. Besides participating in sports and school related activities, she took many business classes throughout her high school career.

FFA

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA

Throughout the year members of the Future Farmers of America had the opportunity to participate in several events. The goal of FFA was to provide its members with the chance to learn more about agriculture and have fun doing it. Members were able to go to events such as the State Fair and a tractor driving competition, where they were the drivers! Junior Eric Johnson said, "The most fun was the tractor driving competition." Johnson won the district competition and was able to advance to regionals.

Other members agreed that the State Fair was the highlight of the year. Students were allowed to spend a day at the fair, seeing the different displays and getting to see farm equipment, live stock, and other things up close. Junior Milissa Williams said, "The State Fair and the tractor driving contests were definitely the best trips."

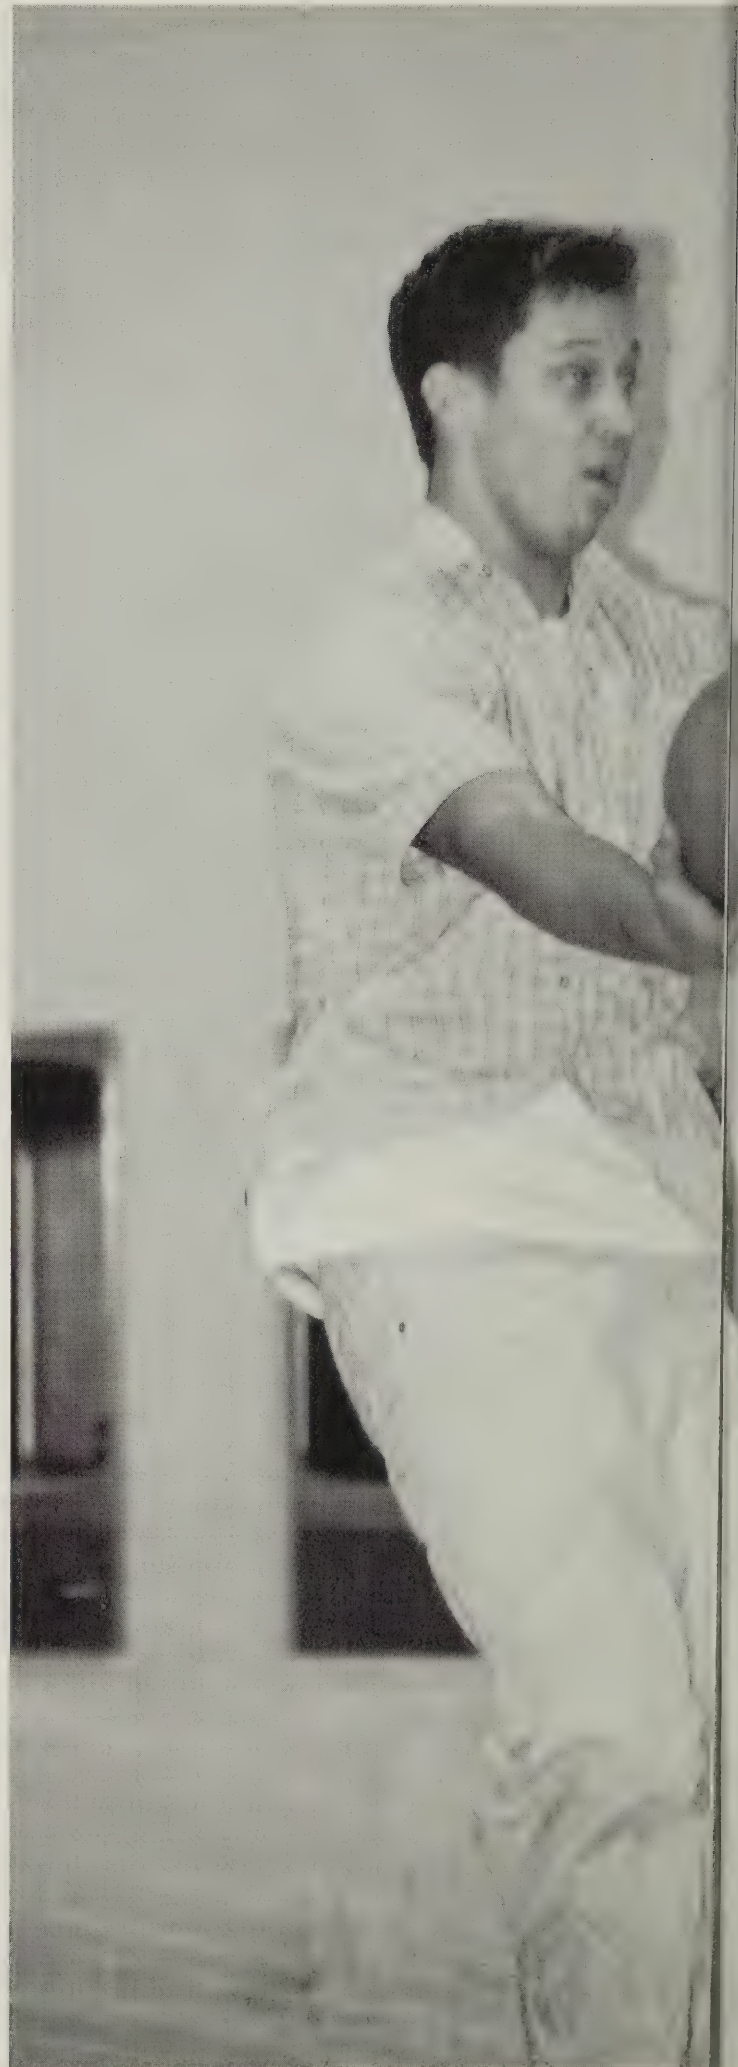

Cows, chickens, tractors and much more were just parts of the FFA. This club was one of the school's largest and most active, earning their respect throughout the student body. It's educational and fun, are you in yet?

LITERARY MAGAZINE STAFF: Melissa Hood, Dara Dill, Sara Wharton, Vera Schooler, Sara Battorff, Mrs. Davis, Debra Rezendes.

TYPING! Sophomore Mandie Stone types a story into the computer during yearbook class. This is her first year involved with the yearbook.

Publications

The word which all members of any publication team fear is DEADLINE. It is do or die time when your approaching a deadline.

For members of publication classes it meant staying after school until it was dark, coming in on the weekends, and in some cases having to miss another class.

Newspaper staff member Wendy Batton had to miss parts of her chemistry class near exam time so she could stay and make sure the newspaper got out on time.

Other difficulties that the publication classes faced were marketing their product, sharing computers, and unexpected happenings.

Though deadlines are a crunch time the final result of the publication is well worth the effort.

By Dylan Clipp

NEWSPAPER! Hard at work, Managing Editor senior Jamie Jefferson along with senior Shannon Simpkins work hard on the school newspaper to meet the deadline. Deadlines mean extra hours...

MULTICULTURAL & RENAISSANCE CLUBS

Being in the Multicultural Club gave students a chance to get together with other teenagers their age and explore their own heritage as well as that of others. The Multicultural Club set goals to help students appreciate the contributions of different groups within society and to also develop an ethnic nationality and global identity. The club spent hours planning ways for students to come together. Their activities included a trip to Richmond to help serve meals at a homeless shelter and an incredible talent show showcasing different acts students put together themselves.

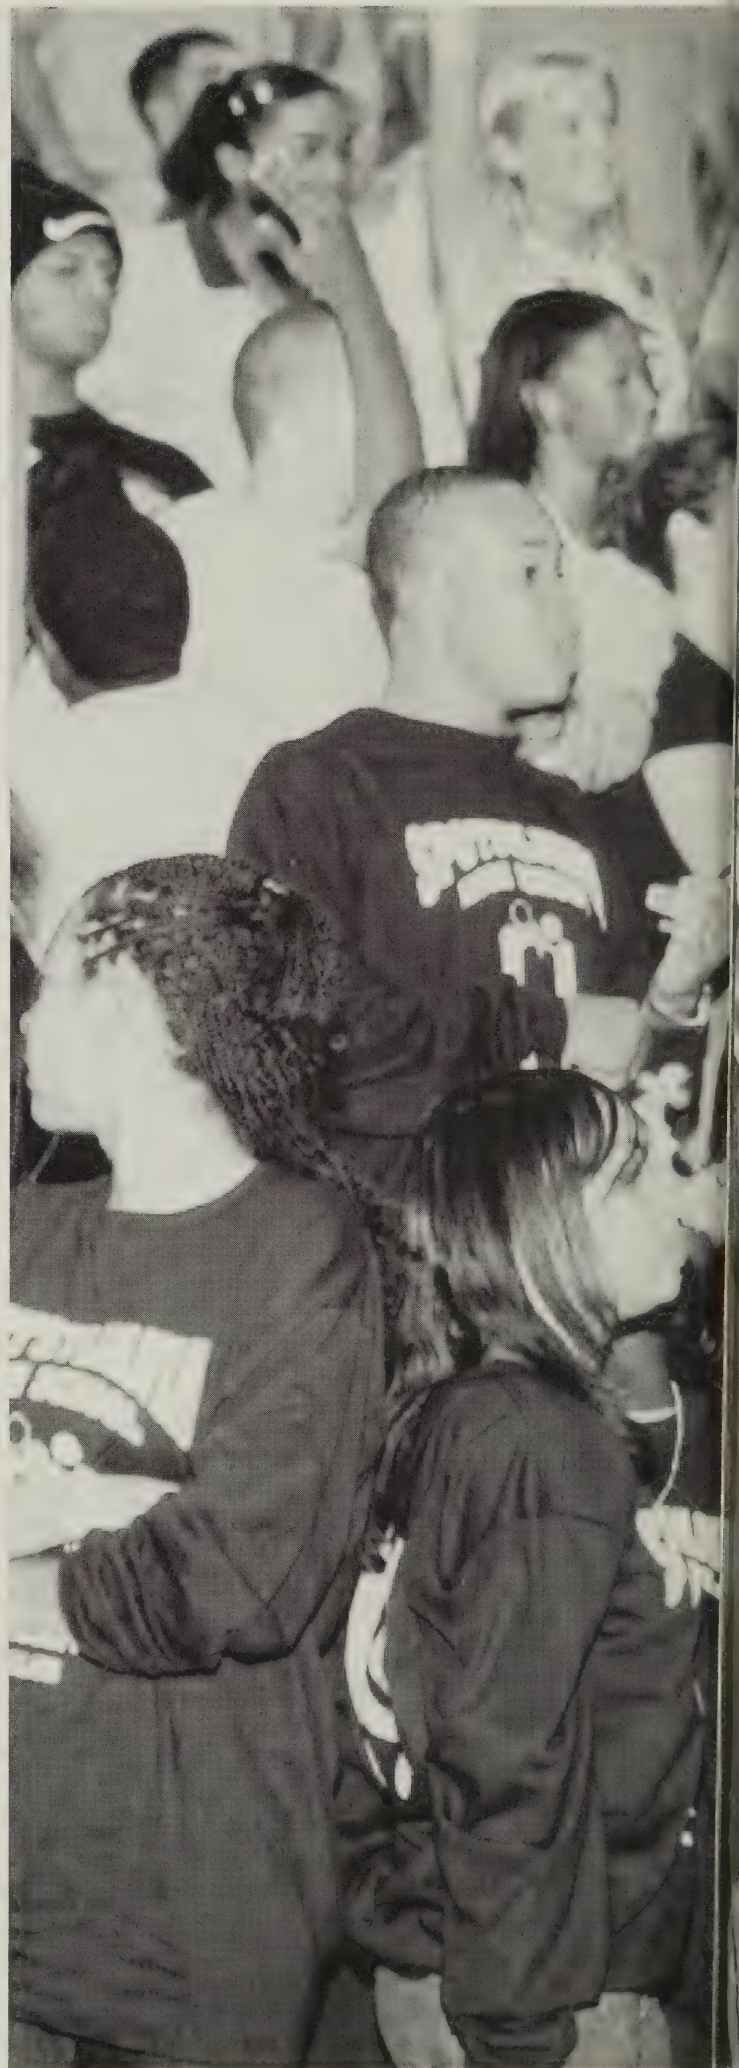

The Renaissance Club highlighted student achievement on a more individual level. If you were a 4.0 student, one who went out on a limb to make your GPA higher, or one who was just never absent, the Renaissance Club had something for you. Offering cards loaded with incentives for good academic achievement, the Renaissance Club became a student favorite. The cards included discounts on after school activities and savings at certain stores. This club offered a positive reward for student achievement.

JAMES FARMER SCHOLARS:

PREPARATION IS KEY! Senior Carly Jones prepares the National Honor Society's Homecoming Parade float. Members of National Honor Society worked on the float for days before the actual parade.

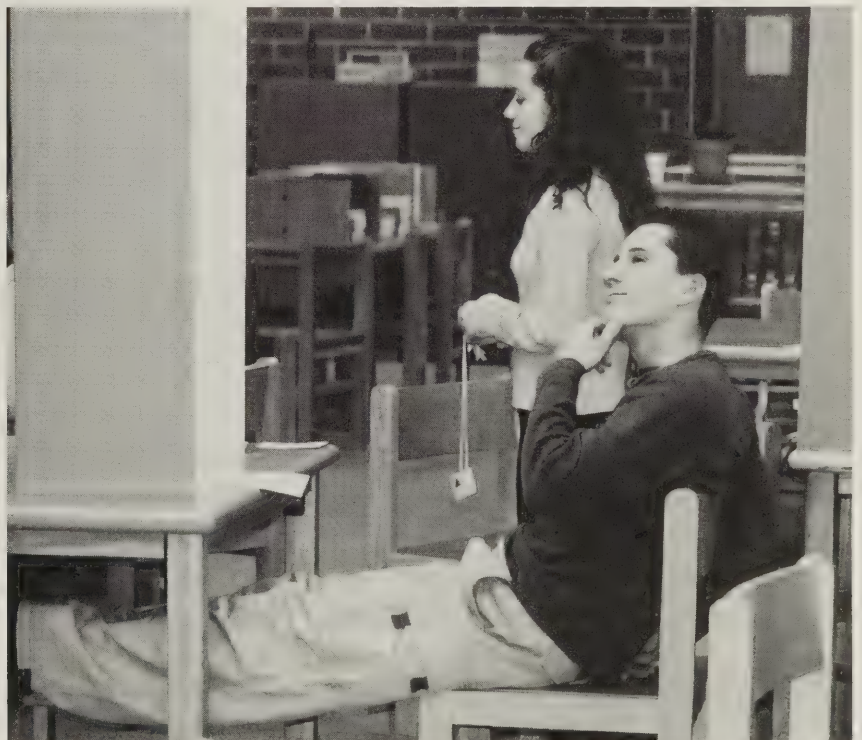

NHS, Key Club, James Farmer Scholars, Science Fair

Students of these clubs had a chance to apply their knowledge outside of the classroom. National Honor Society members were chosen based on their academic skills. Members took trips to nursing homes and helped others through the Red Cross and Habitat for Humanity. "It makes you feel good because we go to homeless shelters and nursing homes," senior Ryan Adair said.

The Key Club was organized by Spanish teacher, Mrs. Pickett. The club participated in activities such as playing bingo at a retirement home, ringing bells with the Salvation Army, and even hosting the Special Olympics. "The Key Club is a service club that promotes leadership and citizenship in the school and in the community," Pickett said.

James Farmer Scholars was sponsored by Mrs. Moffett and Ms. Harper. The club's goal was to increase the number of African American youth preparing to succeed in college. Students were assisted with course selections and college admissions, and they participated in cultural activities.

The Science Fair included students from a wide range of science classes. Participants won ribbons for their 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place finishes and they also got an award for participation. Members of all of these clubs received their own awards, the award of self satisfaction. By Eric Karlinsky, Crystal Hess, and Emma Jo Williams

LOOKING AHEAD! Junior Erik Davis sits and ponders as to whether his project will when the science fair, while classmate Sarah Evans looks on. Science Fair is an honor for students who excell in science and experimentation.

Involvement

The members of the Interact and Environmental Clubs were students who learned throughout the year what it was like to do experiments without getting graded, what it was like to help people, and they also learned what it was like to clean up the environment.

All of the volunteering and the experiments that the club members participated in were used to teach the students closer together how to have fun and in the process they learned respect.

Members of the Interact Club were involved in food drives, highway cleanups, habitats for humanity, and Toys for Tots. The Environmental Club members went on hikes, practiced lab experiments, and competed in the Envirothon.

These clubs were good for students who had extra time on their hands, and weren't afraid of getting a little dirty. To be a part of the Interact or Environmental Club, patience was also needed, along with a good sense of humor.

FEA, DECA, FORENSICS

Deca and the Future Educators of America have many things in common. For instance, they were both related to business. Both clubs taught the students what they should prepare for and what they should know for knowledge in their future careers. Students learned what to expect in the real world.

Mrs. Anderson said, "This class prepares students for what they need to know when they enter the new jobs or careers or even college. It serves the purpose to prepare, so it's not so hard at first on new comers of the world."

Mrs. Rodenson said, "FEA teaches students to be future educators, what it would be like and what to expect."

Debate, a relatively new class to our school, was a welcomed area of instruction. Taught by Mr. Kistler, the debate class showed students how to prepare an organized argument and the best way to present their side.

These clubs helped students to figure out what they wanted to do for the future and how to accomplish their goals.

Different Words

Students of the German, Sign Language, and Spanish clubs were dedicated to making their languages known to their fellow classmates. Concentration, good study habits, and persistence were key factors that were used to stay up to date with the changes that were made in the culture, history and daily use of the languages.

Many students who were involved in the clubs, were looking for something that would further their education. During the course of the year, students that knew and didn't know about their language learned valuable information.

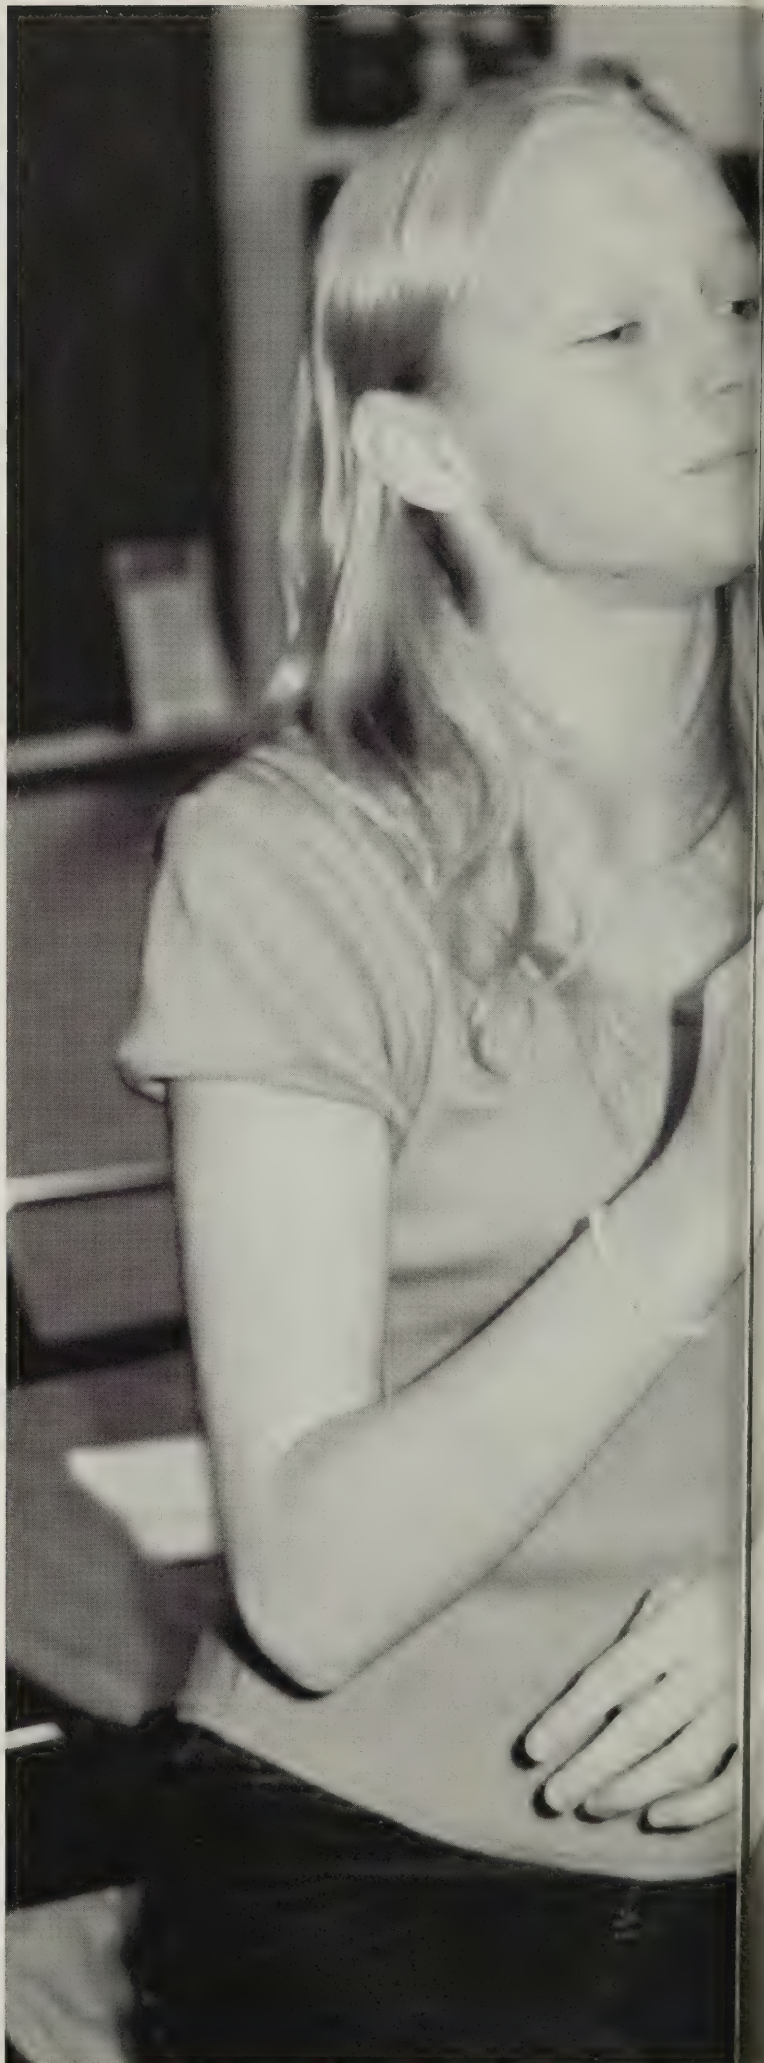

Foreign languages are good thing to have when applying for a job. When they were asked at, the employer automatically assumes that the person could translate phrases in that language for their customers.

FOR ONE FOR MANY

Have you ever wondered where medicines got those long, complicated names from? If you have, ask the Latin Club. The Latin club members all wanted the same thing, to learn a language that could enhance their performance at school.

Latin was very hard to understand if you didn't know the language. That was one reason why students were in the club. Another reason why students participated in the club was to learn the history, the origin, and the culture of the language.

The members of the Latin Club showed a lot of patience to learn the language. In future years, it could decide the job that they will have.

DRAMA

....AND ACTION!!!

Role playings, rehearses, and plays in front of students and parents were just a few of the many things that drama students did during this school year. Drama students conquered their fears by acting in front of an audience.

Being a part of the Drama Club was a big deal to students. To further their careers in acting, students depended on Drama to elaborate on their skills. To make it big in the movie industry, having Drama on your resume made it clear to all possible directors and screen writers that you have had experience in the field of acting.

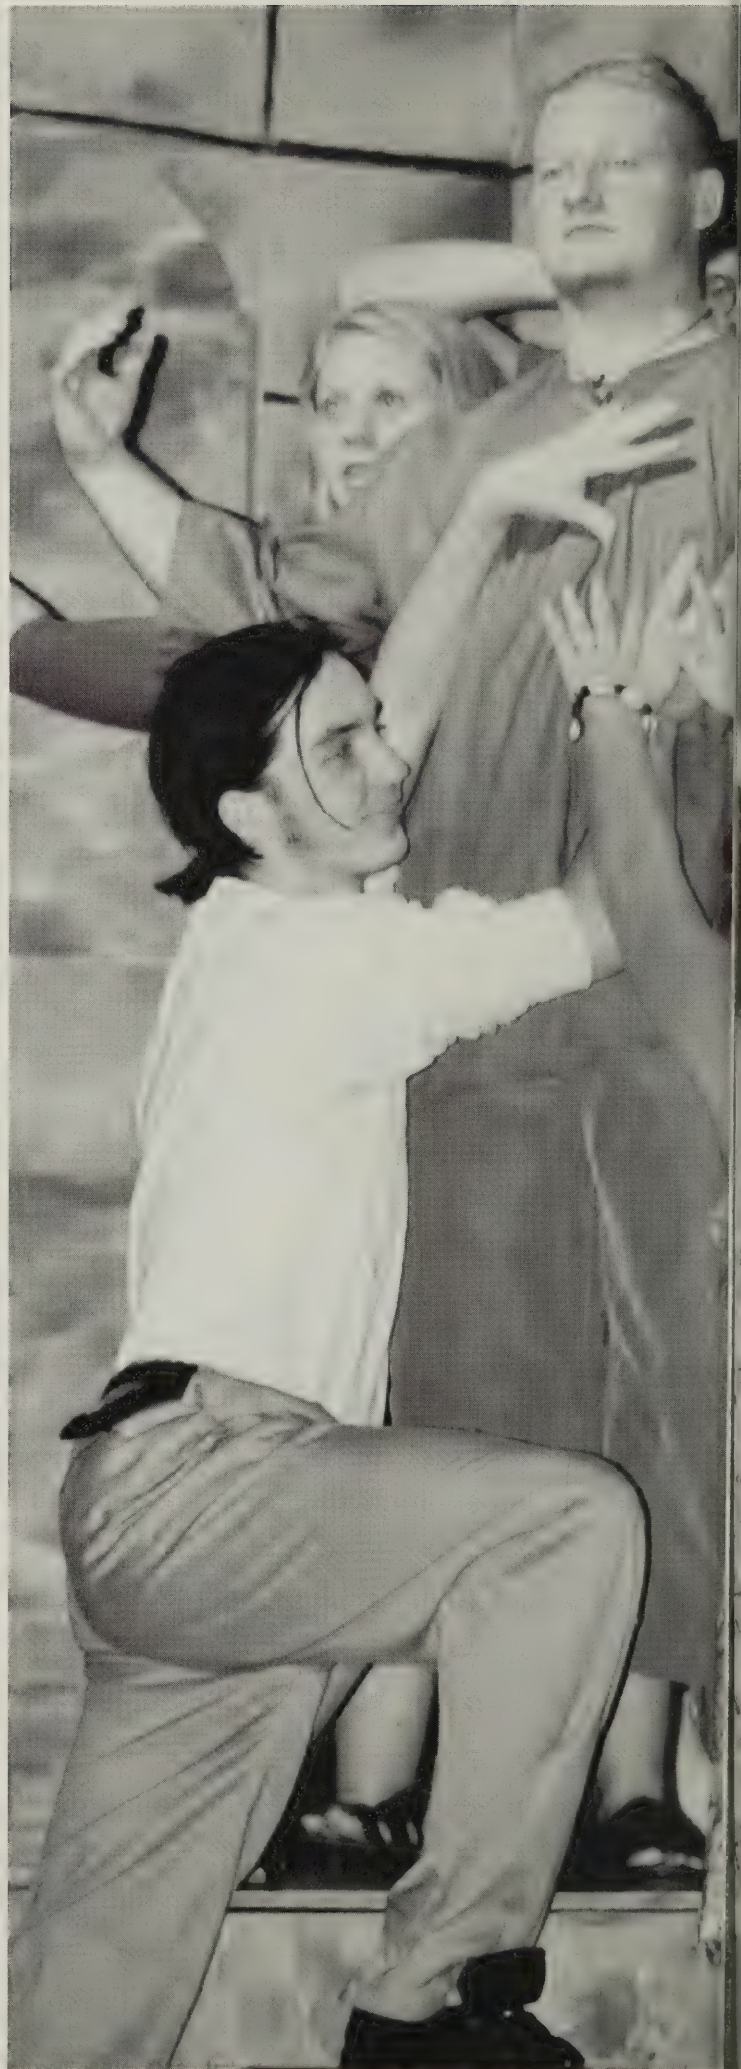

Whether you were in Drama for the experience or for the fun, it was an exhilarating experience. Club members learned how to mimic characters, use accents, and stay calm in front of the audience. They also learned how to balance personal time with school time.

VIRGINIA MATH LEAGUE TECHNICAL DRAWING BLUE CRAB BOWL

There are those clubs that continue learning outside the classroom. Virginia Math League and the Technology Club helped students enrich their educational experiences. VML and the Tech Club provided students with extra activities to help them excel in their regular classes.

"I like to give students a challenge," said VML sponsor Mrs. Gratzick. Virginia Math League members had the opportunity to explore mathematics away from the confines of their usual math classes. Students got out of class to take VML math quizzes; in addition many teachers subscribed to the six quizzes given periodically through the year. The quizzes were general questions designed to engage students mathematically.

The Technology Club also helped students outside of their classes. Tech Club participated in multimedia activities such as: powerpoints, websearches, and technical drawing. "Eventually we hope to have flight simulators, more computers, and a little more multimedia," said Tech club sponsor Mr. Gaier.

There was no difference between being asked what $y=3X+2/6$ equals or putting together a colorful powerpoint, both were an enjoyable and educational experience. Tech Club and VML gave students a chance to pursue their interests and improve their skills in the process.

SCA-OFFICERS, EXEC. BOARD PEER MEDIATION

What comes to mind when you hear the word "goals"? For most, it means a chance to learn while having fun. The sponsors and members of SCA and Peer Mediation learned a variety of things while reaching their goals.

The SCA organized important events during the year including Pep Rallies, dances, motivational speakers, and the Christmas holiday adopt a family program. Mrs. Wilson, SCA sponsor said, "I hope after their experience in SCA they will be able to tackle problems with a sense of confidence and a spirit of unity."

SCA president and senior Stephanie Miller said, "Since being a part of the SCA, I have learned teamwork, responsibility, and leadership. I have also learned to work as a team player with the other officers."

Peer Mediation, sponsored by Mrs. Pleasants, was a group of students dedicated to helping classmates resolve their problems. Pleasants said, "The mediators have learned to help others resolve their problems by using decision making. They have also learned to help students reach compromises." SCA and Peer Mediation members became more involved in their school through those activities. Whether their goals were helping others, learning organization, and/or responsibility, they all left the school year with something new.

FHA, SADD, BATTLE OF THE BRAINS

Future Homemakers of America, Students Against Drunk Driving, and Battle of the Brains were all clubs that helped students. These clubs gave our students great learning experiences.

Mrs. Robertson, the sponsor for FHA, helped students learn how to cook and take care of children. The experiences gave students knowledge for their futures ahead. This hands-on learning let them understand what the real world was like.

SADD was a club that stood up against drunk driving. The club was made up of students and were lead by their sponsor, Mrs. Nicols. This club gave members the chance to show the student body that they could have a good time without the use of drugs, and/or alcohol. The club also informed students about the dangers of alcohol and how it effected the way they drove. It also explained the consequences about getting hurt during a drinking accident.

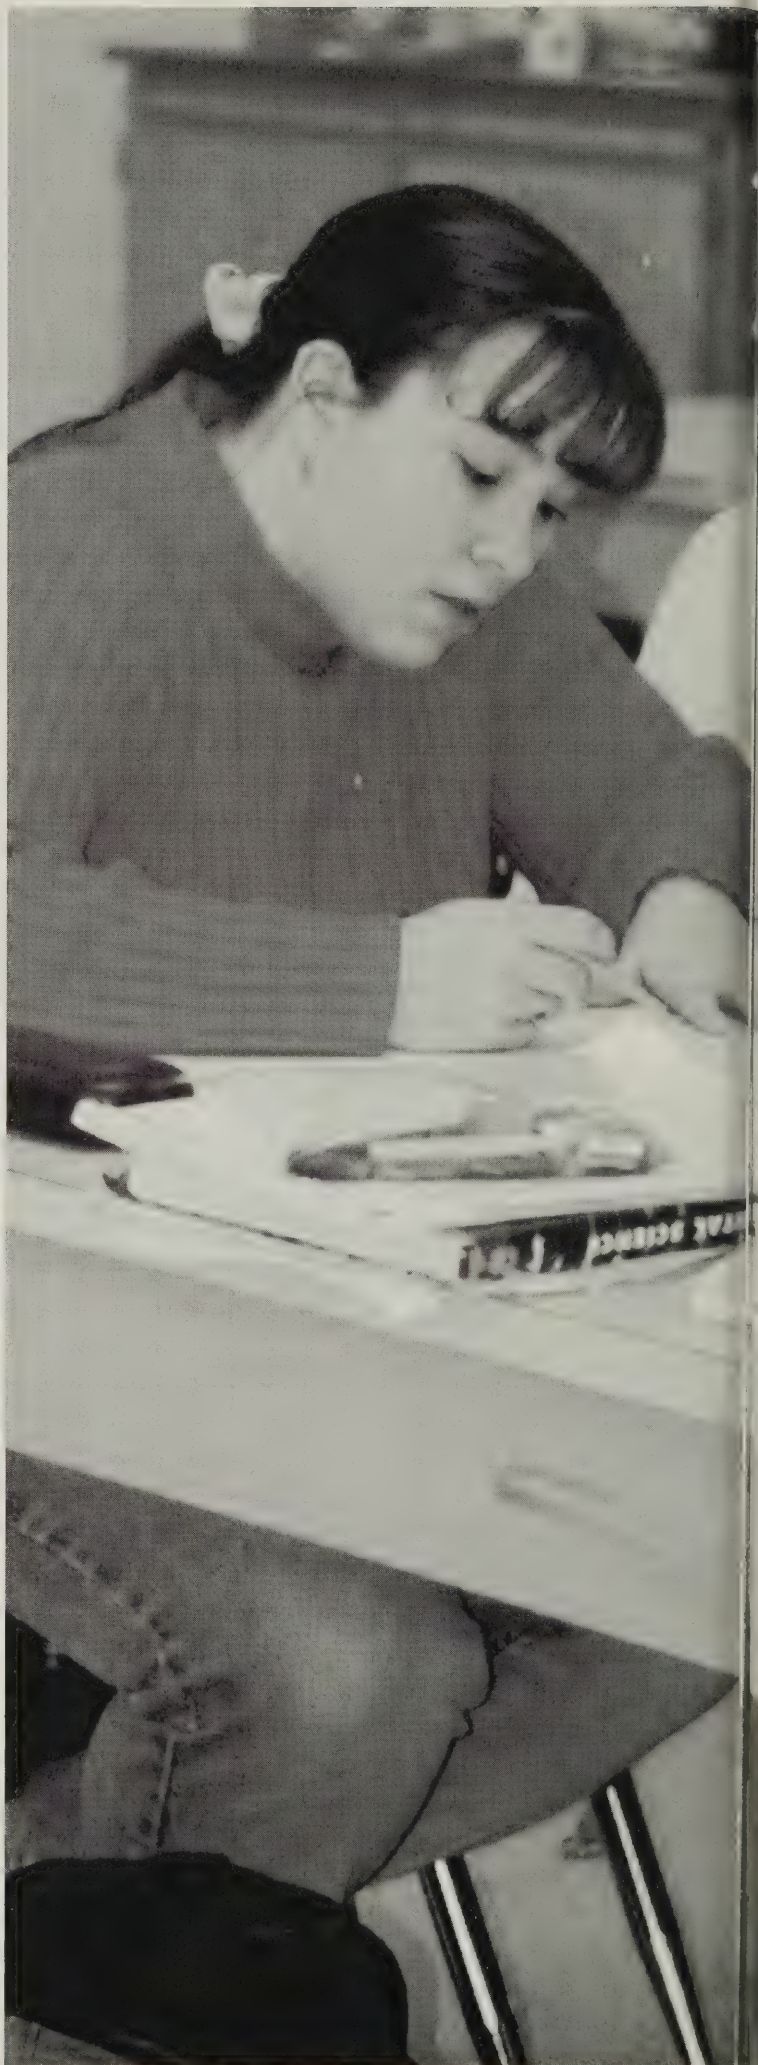

Mrs. Letellier was the sponsor for Battle of the Brains. This club allowed students to show how smart they were while learning new facts. This club challenged members in many ways. FHA, SADD, and Battle of the Brains taught students new things. These clubs were not only educational, but they were also fun.

Sweat, hardwork, and a positive attitude all contributed to making this an outstanding year for sports. The players played harder, worked harder, and trained harder than ever before to set higher standards.

Like the beginning of any season this year started with high expectations. In order to meet and exceed those expectations the teams had to overcome schoolwork, schedules, and injuries. The players represented their sports, not only on the field, but off the field as well. Through the positives and negatives, the good times and bad, all of the teams represented our school exceptionally well.

Over the course of the season many new friendships were built and strengthened. Team work meant trusting each other to work together, as these teams did. They worked for victory each game, and they were all winners.

Visions of Victory

Varsity Baseball

As the hit-a-thon started, music played over the sound system and the baseball team warmed up. Friends said hello, ate hot dogs and nachos and watched the team warm up. As the balls were hit to each member of the team their families and friends watched their performance. Pitchers warmed up as fans waited to have a chance to hit.

Coach Tim Deyseu said, "The purpose of the hit-a-thon was to bring family, as well as friends and players together to enjoy the sport of baseball.

Senior Joey Brann said, "I feel that everyone came out to just enjoy themselves." The hit-a-thon was composed of each member getting pledges ranging from 25 cents to one dollar from the community. Then they were each given 10 pitches to see how far they could hit.

Ideas such as the hit-a-thon are a new way to bring coolness between the players and family members, coaches, and friends. "It was cool and it was fun to hit in the hit-a-thon," said Junior Dale Ozmar. The athletic program is nothing without the community. Sports such as baseball don't have as many fans as football or basketball. But those fans who do come are very dedicated and each year the crowd increases.

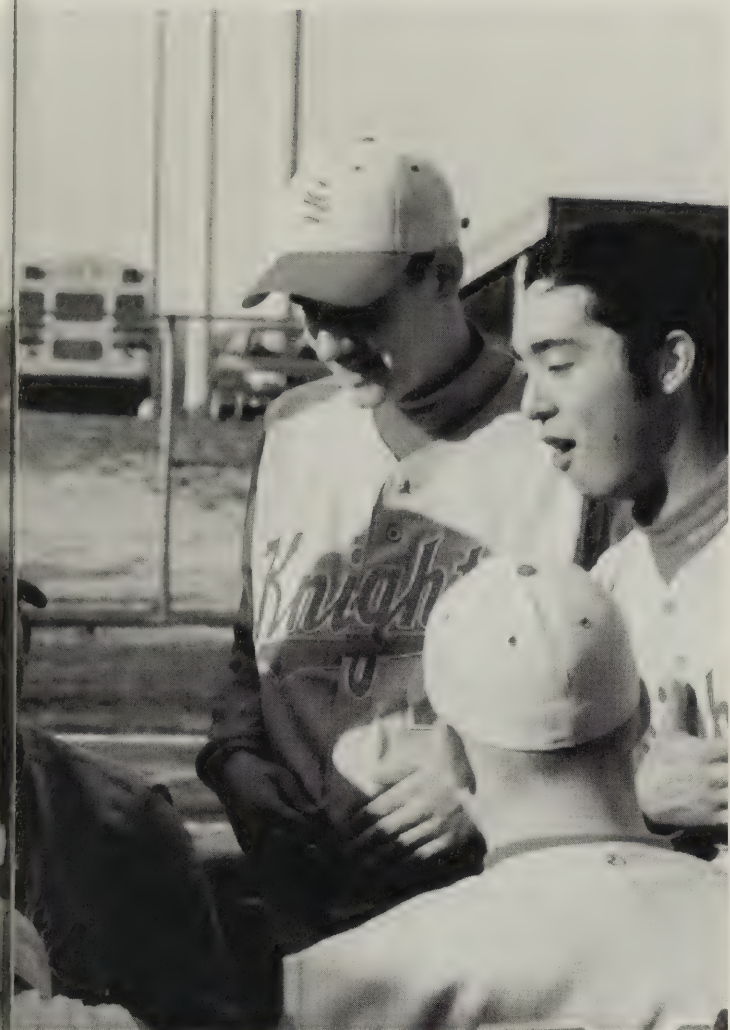

READY!! Senior Kevin Marshall waits for the pitch. His job at first base was to keep the runner from stealing bases.

WINDING UP! Sophomore Kathryn Massey winds up for a pitch during the game. Massey has been playing softball for years.

CONCENTRATION! Sophomore Trae Wyche throws the ball back to the catcher to get a player on the other team out.

CATCHING BLIND: Sophomore Jenny Sorenson jumps up as she stops the ball dead in its tracks to get a runner out.

SOFTBALL

"Take me home!!!" one of the runners says to the batter in hopes that she will hit a homerun. The batter gets ready for the throw....HOMERUN!!!!, the umpire says, and the crowd goes wild. Softball was a sport open to all girls who liked to play. To players, the game gave them a taste of what a champion life would be like.

So what did the players of our softball team expect for the season? Senior Nicole Reedy had many expectations for the season. "From the beginning of the season, I had an idea that we could make it far, but I didn't expect us to be Co-District Champions, and make it to Regionals. I expect us to make it farther this year," Reedy said. Junior Jenny Sorenson had a different opinion on the way the season went. Sorenson said, "The season didn't turn out like I wanted. I believe that we should've won Regionals, and went to states."

Senior Jessica Sorenson said, "I think our hitting excelled over the season." Ashley Mangum, a senior expressed her reasons for the team's weaknesses. "Closer to the end of the season, people were getting tired, and were ready for a break. Our team unity started falling apart around this time," Mangum said.

Playing softball, like any other sport required more than knowledge; it required a love for the game. "I became a part of the team because I LOVE SOFTBALL!! My love for the game helped me decide to play," Jenny Sorenson.

TAKING A BREAK! Junior Amy Hutsell takes a break from the game to get a drink. Amy was the catcher for the softball team all through the season.

Bringing it Home

JV SOFTBALL and BASEBALL

This year's JV Softball team had a terrific season. Together they played and together they won. The girls had quite a reputation to uphold and did a great job.

One of the main challenges the team had to overcome was the fact that they were basically a new team. Only four players returned to the team from the previous year. Although this was difficult to overcome, the girls pulled together and played as a team. "As a team, we progressed very well," said coach Johnnie Ellis. The girls made great strides together as a new team. Coach Ellis added, "we've worked together to build a place for ourselves."

Also out on the field was the JV Baseball team. With their eight-win season, the boys set a solid foundation for themselves. The team was constantly at work trying to improve skills and stamina. In the end, it all paid off.

WATCH OUT!! Senior Jenny VanReenan kicks the ball past the opposing team. This was VanReenan's last year playing soccer for the High School.

COOL DOWN!! Senior Shannon Reavels cools down after playing a quarter with a broken wrist. Reavels played hard even when they were winning.

Girls' Soccer

"Pass it here!!!," was one of the most common phrases used by teammates during the girls' Varsity soccer season. Members of the team became more than teammates, they became a family. Playing and practicing with one another, day and night, until they knew each others' moves, and until they got the plays perfect. Each member of the girls' soccer team learned that working together made it easier for them to achieve their goal, but without past experience, they found it was harder. Junior Megan Link felt that the soccer season had ups and downs, but the ups were more influential than the downs. "I think our season went pretty well, we had a lot of young people and a lot of freshmen. They didn't have a lot of soccer experience, but by the end, we all learned a lot and it was a fun season," Link said. Another junior on the team was Kelly Wolff. Wolff described what her expectations for the team were during the season. "I expected us to go a little bit farther, but I wasn't disappointed on how the season turned out," Wolff mentioned. The girls who played soccer for the team, were all unique in their own ways. They each played different positions, and like the positions, they had different reasons for playing. Wolff's reason for playing soccer was, "I became a part of the team because I loved playing soccer, and it's just a lot of fun." Link who had been playing soccer for a while described her reason for joining the team. "I've been playing soccer all my life, and a lot of my friends play and we usually have a fun season," Link said.

By Emma Jo Williams

BREAK OUT!! Sophomore Kelly Wolfe runs for the ball on a fast break down the field. Wolfe has always enjoyed playing soccer, and also played field hockey.

Boys Varsity Soccer

Rebuilding is a problem which every team faces each year as seniors graduate. The varsity soccer team will face this problem this year as twelve seniors graduated, leaving the team with only five returning players.

Sophomore Jordan Nougaret said, "We will be a young team but we should do ok next season. But the following season after that we should be awesome, and plan to go onto regionals."

Though the varsity squad will not be as experienced playing with the taller players, the junior varsity team fared well against district opponents and only lost two games the whole season, so the varsity had some talent to tap into.

Sophomore Christian Porter said, "Spotsy is going to win states with great skills demonstrated this year, no one can get in Corey Applin's way." Though the team was sophomore and junior dominated, many of the players believed that it will only make them better and come together as a stronger team.

Sophomore Tommy Skinner added "I think we [the varsity soccer team] will be pretty good next year. We have a lot of good players coming up." A cheer for team spirit!

FLY! Senior Chip Connell flies to save the play for the Knights in the home game.

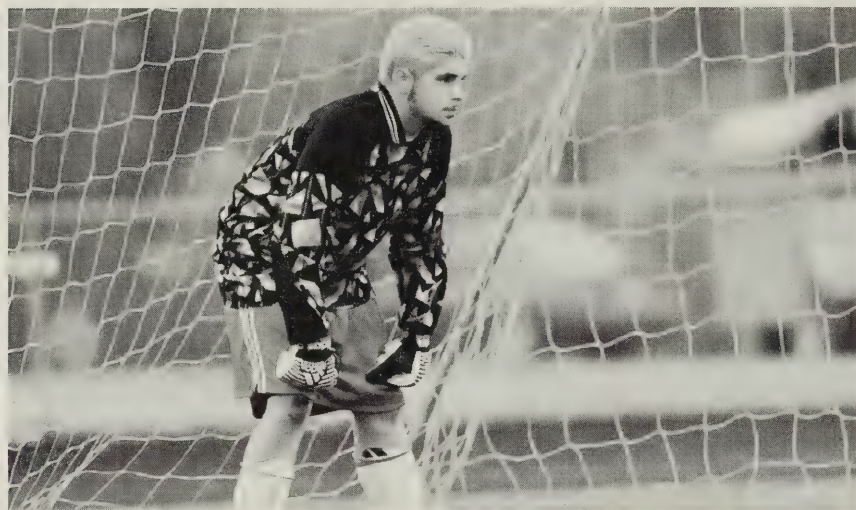

GET READY! Junior Jason Zimmerman prepares to pass the ball during a home game. Zimmerman played soccer all through High School.

GO TO IT! Freshman Albie LaBossiere heads to the ball during a varsity soccer game. This was Labossiere's first year playing varsity.

KICK! Freshman Chris Stansbury kicks the ball down field after stealing it from the other team. Stansbury has always enjoyed and played soccer, in school and outside school.

VISUALIZE! Sophomore goalie, Craig Stone, visualizes how he is going to block the ball as he watches it come his way. This is Stone's second year playing for the High School.

INTENSITY! Sophomore Christian Porter watches the intense action on the field as he takes a break from the game.

WAIT! The Team takes a break and watches the game as they wait to be put in. Freshman Varsity player Albie Labossiere watches also. The varsity players often came to watch the JV game.

JV Soccer

Second in the district! That's what the JV Boys Soccer team have to brag about. This past season the team worked its way into a second place district season. But this accomplishment didn't just happen over night. The boys had to earn everything they got. The team had to practice a lot. Freshmen Jacob DeLapp said, "We all had to work really hard at practice. Some of the drills were really difficult." Some of the drills the team did were the "power and finesse" drill and the "world cup" drill.

But the team wasn't always about hard work and no fun. In order to lighten the tough practices the team members would play around and mess with each other. Beating up on each other was always good-hearted fun. Freshmen Corey Applin said, "We gave each other wedgies and joked around alot.."

The boys worked very hard this season in order to reach their goal of a high district placing. But they also knew how to have fun, which is what made this season something to brag about.

Junior Brandon Rudy said, "Corey Applin will lead the varsity team to many victories next season."

Tennis Anyone?

Some of the greatest tennis players at one time were highschool students. It was no surprise when tennis became a popular sport among highschool students.

Like any other sport, knowledge of the game and skills were needed to truly be able to play tennis. The phrase "patience is a virtue," was commonly used when things didn't go the way that they had been planned. Megan Owens, a junior on the girls' tennis team, described how she thought the season turned out for her and the team. "My record ended up being 9 to 3, so I did really good personally. As a team, we didn't do as good as we could have because we lost all the matches," Owens said.

Members of both the tennis teams all said that they liked tennis and that they had a different reason for playing. Junior Jimmy Kulina of the boys' tennis team mentioned that the reason why he became a part of the team was because, "There was a lot of team commodery and it was fun to play." Erik Davis however had a similar but unique answer for his reason for joining the team. "I became a part of the team because I really enjoyed tennis, the people on the team, and the coach," junior Erik Davis said.

Both of the teams had a good year. What really made the teams excell in their game was that some of the players had past experiences with the field of tennis. One of the players on the boys' team who played the game before, was Mark Pattie. Pattie who was a freshman said, "I like tennis, and I have already played on a team before I came to high school."

TAKE A SWING! Sophomore Gigi Hazen take's a stride as she hits at the ball in a home match. GiGi was on of the top players on the team.

REACHING DOWN! Junior John Garnett reaches low to hit the ball during a tough home match. Garnett has always enjoyed playing tennis and is one of the top players for the boy's team.

SETTING UP! During a home match against Chancellor High, Junior Megan Pattie prepares to hit the ball back to her opponent.

DIVE! Senior Leah Eckhart lunges for the ball during a home match. This was Eckhart's last year playing tennis for the High School.

TAKE A LOOK! Freshman Mark Pattie watches to see where his ball landed on the other side so he can prepare for its return.

ON YOUR MARK! Get set, GO! This is what members of the cross country team here as they take off from the starting line at a home meet against Caroline.

FROM START TO END! Junior Christian Porter and senior Jason Kenawell run toward the finish line of a long cross country meet. It takes much endurance and effort to be successful at the sport.

HIGH ASPIRATIONS! Junior Matt Echols sets his spirits high in order to win a competition. He prepares to pole vault.

Track and Cross Country

"On your mark! Get Set! GO!," were the words Cross country members heard as they took off from the starting line. Led by their coach, Mr. D'Ostilio, winning was the team's ultimate goal and losing was out of the question.

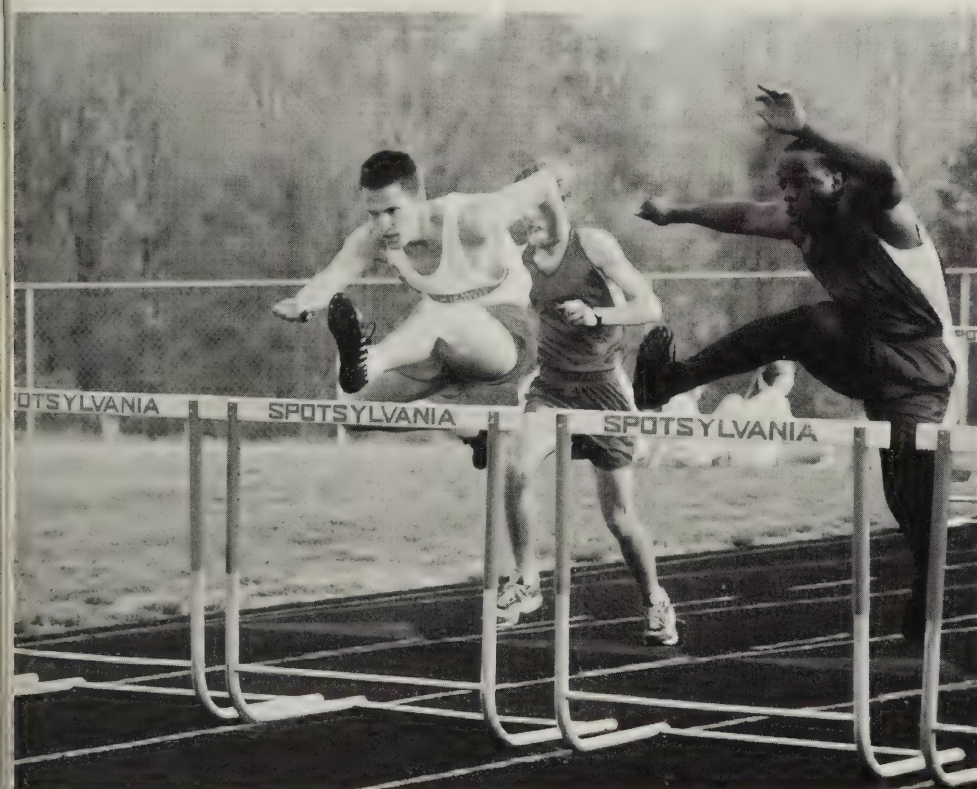

Junior Matt Echols said, "Cross country takes dedication and hard work. If you can run Cross Country, you know you can accomplish many things."

Senior Sarah Walker said, "I like doing it. The workouts are good. I started on the team to get in shape for volleyball," said Walker. It must have worked--She stayed on the team for three years.

Track members were equally dedicated. Runners practiced at least four days a week for about two and a half hours, working on leg stretches and paced running. A few practices were dedicated to just running to build up endurance and stamina. "People use Cross Country for conditioning for outdoor track," said Senior Michael Petty.

Whether the teams won or lost, respect for one another was the key. Every meet gave the members a new chance to beat their own times as well as their opponents.

Colorguard

What brings color and excitement to football games at halftime? Who dresses up in funny looking costumes to spice up the show? For as long as anyone can remember there have been color guards with Marching bands.

Color Guard is a mixture of flag work and dance routines. The color guard members show enthusiasm through their smiling faces when they perform. You can see the pride in their eyes and how much they love color guard. Most members continue with color guard throughout their entire high school career. Many have sisters that were in color guard in years past, it's a family tradition.

You have to be dedicated and have a high tolerance for many things. Hot practices out side on the black top, giving up three weeks of summer vacation for band camp. Learning new routines in weeks alone and aslo learning the band sets as well. However it's not all hard work, color guard member have loads of fun. By learning cheers, songs, and dances, playing around with your friends.

After all their hard work at weekend competitions this year's color guard season was very successful. Although they all know it's not about winning, color guard recieved two first places. Of course they were ecstatic, but they had a winning season no matter what because of all the fun they had. Color guard is a great way to make new friends and make memories for a life time.

Senior Melissa Mullen swing a rifle during a football game. Colorguard members have to practice long hours to be able to swing their flags and props in sync with each other.

ALL TOGETHER NOW! Junior Cynthia Alsop, sophomore Felicia Allen, and senior Ashley Boggs stand in a line holding up over-sized records that they use during their performances.

SMILE! Senior Jenny Hammock smiles as she performs. Hammock has been a member of colorguard for all 4 years of high school and this year is one of the captains.

STRIKE A POSE! Junior Amy Fines poses with her flag. Colorguard requires the girls to not only concentrate on their routine but what others are doing too.

TALK ABOUT IT! During half-time the varsity field hockey team plans their attack for the next half.

PASS! Junior Megan Link passes the ball to senior Ashley Holland in an attempt to get the ball down field and score archival James Monroe.

FIGHT FOR THE BALL! Junior Kelly Wolfe struggles with two James Monroe players for a chance to hit the ball up field.

GET OUT OF THE WAY! Jamie Szczecinski pushes the ball up the field against James Monroe.

Varsity Field Hockey

The team started in the summer before school even began. The first game was at home against King George. Gifts were given from the big sisters to the little sisters. Big sisters were the Varsity team and Little sisters were the JV team. The Season started with the defeat of King George. With a new coaching staff and new players the team took some time to get used to each other but it didn't take long. The season started off right with a win. The girls had a tough season with many of the girls getting injured. Nevertheless they fought their way into districts. Even though they were defeated by JM they still won their ticket to Regionals where they played a tough game but were knocked out of the regional tournament in the first game.

JV Field Hockey

The season started, and field hockey players hit the field. All you could here were the girls screaming flat! Through! Flat!

For the first time in ten years the girls were at the top . The most important game of the season was against JM. The game was intensed, the game was tied 0,0 the girls wanted to score.

Finally the ball went in like a bomb had struck the back of the other team's goal-- the girls had scored!! Teammates were crying this was the season the girls on Jv would never forget.

Girls Varsity Basketball

What do you think of when you think of girls Varsity Basketball team? You think of a group of girls that were very successful this season. With a magnificent record the girls varsity Basketball team went 22-2-0 this season. The team went to Districts and conquered all of their opponents. But in the end they lost their first game in Regionals here at a home game.

This school year they were first in the district and went on to regionals. This was a major accomplishment for all the girls and coaches of the team. They could not have asked for a better season.

Teacher and Coach Mrs. Linn said, "In order to have a wonderful season it took a lot of team unity and cooperation between the teammates." The girls had a great season and a ton of fun along the way.

VARSITY BOYS

BASKETBALL

SWISH.... NOTHING BUT NET!!

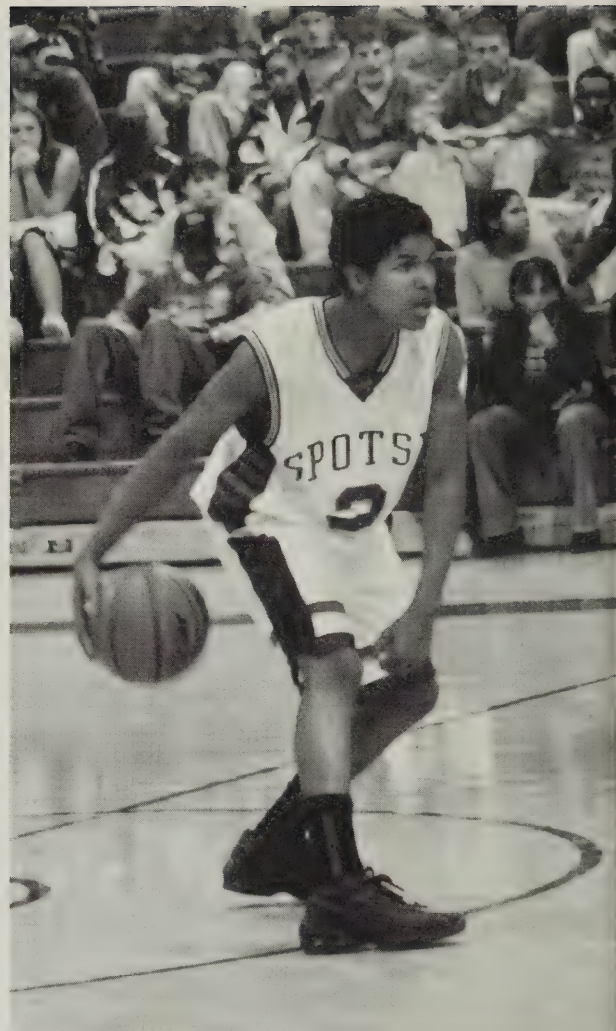

What makes a team successful?? This year the Varsity Basketball team played a terrific season. The season was successful because of their team cooperation and their dedication to the game. Not only did they cooperate as a team, they worked as individuals to bring the whole team together.

Members of the team had their own ways of making the season successful. Each player had a different way of mentally preparing themselves for the game. Junior Jeremy Hefner said, "I say my individual prayers by myself, and go over team plays. As a team we say a prayer before we go onto the court."

Junior Demetri Yates had a different way of approaching the game. Yates said, "As an individual I try to calm down. I also try to visualize what I'm going to do when I get an opportunity. As a teammate, I try to keep everyone loose and mentally prepared."

The team members individual ways of preparing for the game contributed to their winning streak. Through thick and thin, the teammates pulled together to play their hardest. They supported one another as a family and defied all boundaries in the sport of basketball.

PREPARATION. Varsity member Antron Minor prepares for his move while being watched closely by his opponent.

SCORE. Antron Minor makes his shot scoring points for his team with only two minutes left of the game. Antron's favorite move is "Dunking."

HUDDLE. Varsity players huddle to discuss their next move. Every player has a say in deciding the next play.

CLOSE CALLS. Bennie Clark passes the ball to a fellow varsity team member. It was a close call with number 34 approaching.

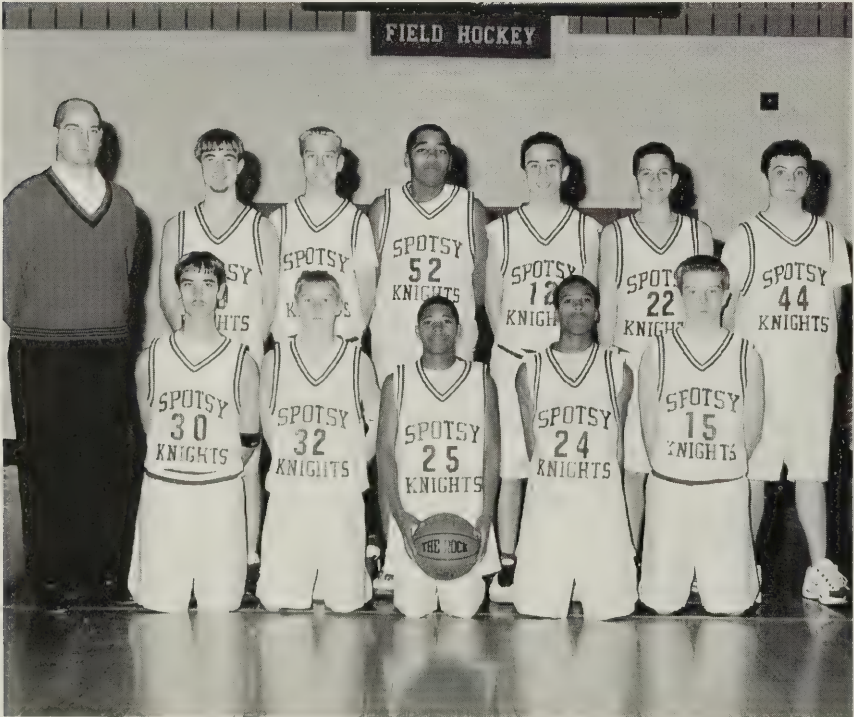

STRUGGLE. Freshmen team members struggle to gain control of the ball from Colonial Forge.

TAKING THE SHOT. Player Chris Skinner dribbles to the basket to take the winning shot.

JV & FRESHMAN BOYS BASKETBALL

"WHAT A SHOT!!" Both the Freshman and JV Boys Basketball teams showed their stuff on and off the court. They played hard during their season and had high expectations for the next year. Freshman Robbie Cotton said, "We're going to win the District Championship this year."

Both the Freshmen and JV teams increased their talents with practice. The teams practiced at all hours of the day. They challenged their bodies along with their minds as they learned new tactics and plays. Layups, v-cuts, 3 on 2, and 2 on 1, were just a few of the many activities that the teams used to get themselves prepared. Freshman Brandon Tyler said, "We got talent."

The beginning of the season was a little rough, but the players didn't let that get them down. Junior Josh Hefner said, "I think the season was fun and successful." Even with the rough start of the season, Coach Garland of the freshmen team encouraged his team to win. "I would've like to have seen more wins, but I'm glad that the boys had fun," Garland said. Overall the students and coaches enjoyed the season. They played hard but they also had fun, and that was what really mattered.

By Justin Bogart and Emma Williams

BLOCK IT. Freshmen Mitchell Smith blocks his opponent from making the pass. In basketball, defense is just as important as offense.

Fall Cheerleaders

Not just pon poms and pretty smiles!

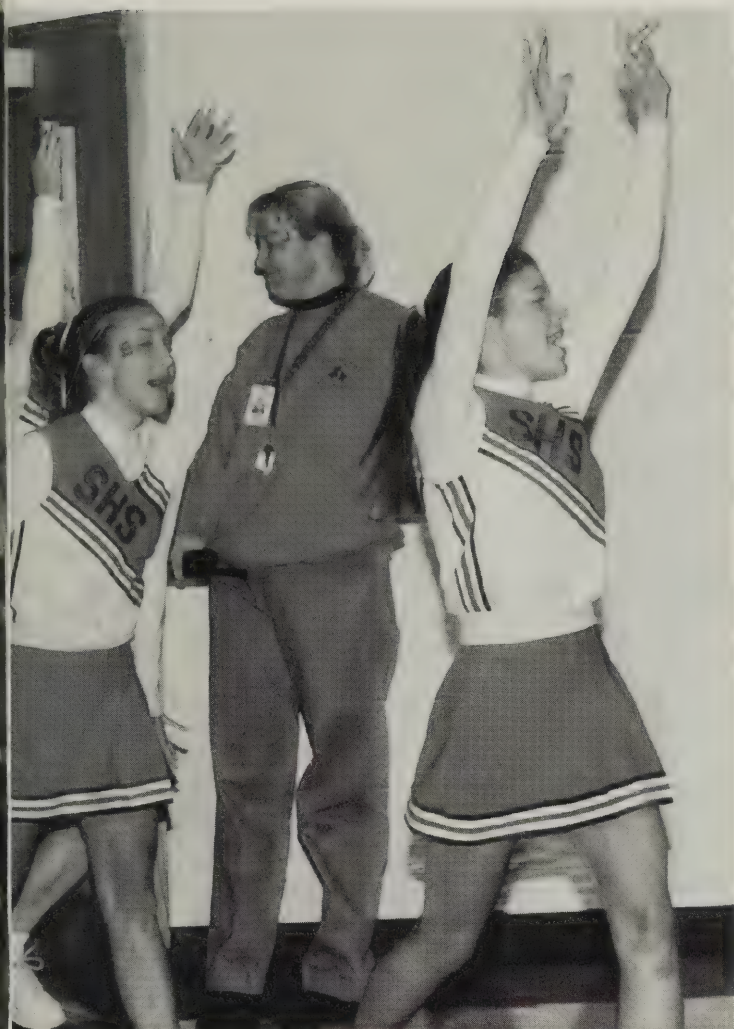

Gooooooooo Knights!!!!The moment of a touchdown, the fans go wild. The fall cheerleaders threw up a basket toss and sprang up into cheerleading jumps.

Jumps and basket tosses were just one of the many hurdles the fall cheerleaders perfected. Senior Tiffany Seay said, "Shaking pon poms and yelling out cheers is not what a cheerleader is all about." Most sports contain one main skill, unlike cheerleading which contains four. When over one-hundred girls tried out for those forty-eight spots on the squads, they had to master cheer, dance, gymnastic and stunt skills. Freshmen Heather Scheer said, "I was really excited I made the squad." "I worked really hard for it."

Athleticism is key in cheerleading. Some of the Fall Cheerleaders participate in other sports when they are not cheering. Junior Allie VanCleve and freshmen sister Monica VanCleve participate on the gymnastic team. VanCleve said, "Being on the gymnastics team helps me with my tumbling in cheerleading." Juniors Lindsey Fletcher and Allie VanCleve would often show off their cart-wheel back handsprings at football games. Coach Michele High said, "We have a lot of very talented girls on all the squads."

PEP THE CROWD! Sophomore Kasey Wheeler and freshman Megan Tamillow lead the JV cheerleaders to perform for the pep rally.

BACK ROW: Tabitha Bako, Chassidy Hall, Allie VanCleve, Lindsey Fletcher, Rachel Garland.

INTERCEPTION! Junior Jake Freeman runs the ball up the field in an attempt to score a touchdown after an interception.

TOUCHDOWN! Sophomore Lytron Tolson jumps to celebrate a touchdown to get the crowd fired up in a game against Madison High School.

CONSTRUCTIVE CRITICISM. Coaches Robinson and Coleman encourage their team even in their darkest moments. Evaluating the plays and players can be the toughest part of the coaches job.

STRUGGLE! Even when out numbered Spotsy's Knights strive to win in a game against Madison High School. The struggles didn't help the Knights prevail. They lost 13 to 22.

Varsity Football

Everybody knows the old saying about how jocks are supposed to be dumb and lack common sense, well.....? They are a lot smarter than they look. So some may be suprised to know that some of them are at the top of their classes. This season however, was not as succesful as they had hoped. Their team record was 5-5.

The team was just getting used to their new coaching staff from last year. They picked up two new coaches, Coach Laine and Coach Hall. They seemed to like the new coaches so far.

This season the team suffered many losses due to injuries and/or grades. They had lost there star quartarback due to a bad knee injury not long into the season. The team also lost some offensive and defensive lineman due to injuries as well. Even with the loss of these players, Coach Coleman and Coach Hall tried to keep their players spirits high.

At the end of the season, the team did not have to worry about losing as many seniors as they did the year before. So the team will already have their playing time together for the upcoming season, next school year.

JV Football

What comes to mind when you think of a football team? Normally you think of a team that stays together. This season the JV Football team fell apart day by day.

The team was lost players by the dozen because due injuries. Even though the team was falling apart they still gave it their all every game of the season.

The JV team also had trouble getting used to their new coaching staff. They had a new coaching staff this season because Coach Robinson went to the Varsity team. Mr. Garland was one of the three coaches.

This season the team did not do as well as they wanted to. They lost so many players that the team was not used to all the changes being made. But in the end they toughed it out.

DODGE! Freshman Nathan Scott tries to break through a tackle as Sophomore Vernon Davis blocks for him. Davis is a new addition to the Knights.

RUN! Freshman Nathan Scott attempts to score a touchdown. Scott runs the ball in many of the games.

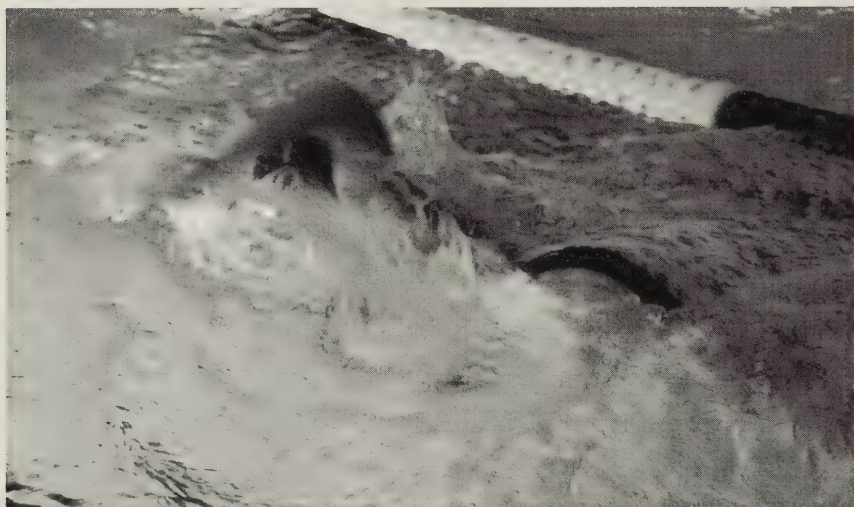

TACKLE! Freshman Nathan Scott makes an attempt to run up the field but is tackled on his way. This was Scott's first year playing for the Knights.

KICKOFF! Freshman Josh Hefner punts the ball to get it up the field and away from his opponent. This was Hefner's first year on the JV team.

HEAD FIRST!! With time running out before the meet begins, swim members practice their starts. Practice was very important in swimming. The better they became, the chances of them winning were increased.

WARMING UP: Sophomore Allison Gorski warms up before a big meet. Warm ups relieved tensions in the body that could cause cramping in their muscles.

PREPARATION. Junior Christina Anthes prepares to start the back stroke as fellow teammates dive to start their warm-up laps. Teammates prepared long and hard to get themselves ready for the meets and for the competitions.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT: Freshman Amy VanReenan practices her breast stroke for an upcoming meet. The members of the swim team now knew what the phrase "Practice makes perfect," meant. It meant that through hard work, and hours of practice their skills in swimming would increase.

Swimming

Swimmers, take your mark! These are the last words our swimmers heard before the beeper sent them flying into the water. A sport unlike any other, swimming offered an incredible challenge for all who participated. Being a relatively new sport to the school, the team was handicapped by its small number. However, the team had no shortage of talent and determination. Twenty three people poured out all their efforts in both practices and meets alike.

During the practices everyone had their own things to work on. With the guidance of the coaches they were pushed to their limits. By the end of it all the swimmers were proud on how much they have improved.

The team focused on achieving personal best times and increasing skills. Hoping for a larger team next season to make a bigger splash, the swimmers did all they could to be the best.

Volleyball

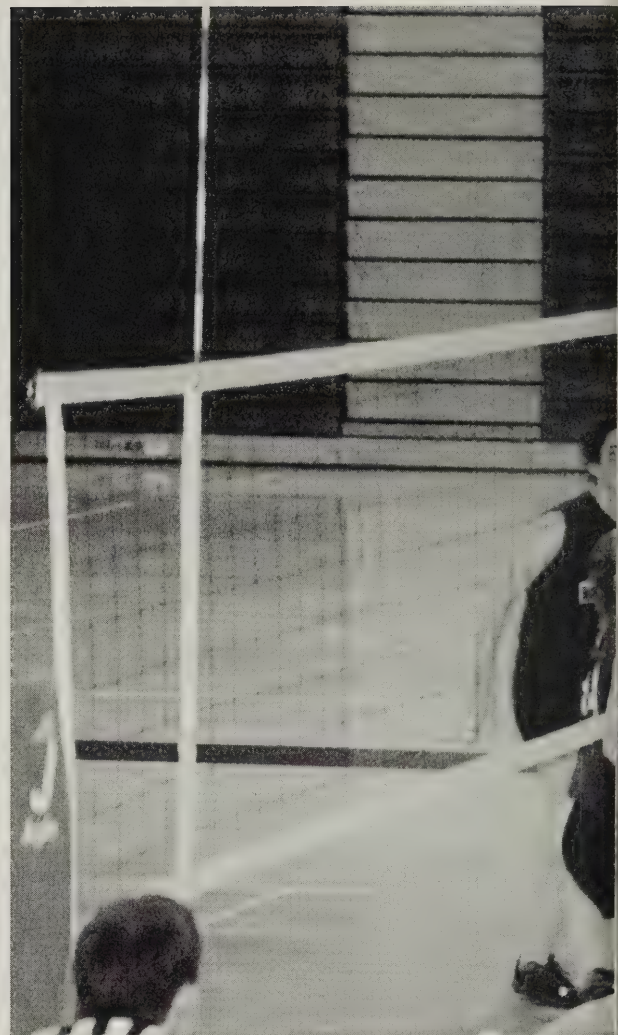

Bump! Set! Spike! The Girl's Volleyball teams strung together one great play after another as they fought for the win. A pinpoint accurate serve, a perfect bump, a delicate set, and a whizzing spike all came together to make the outcome favorable. As the players walked off the court, victorious or not, they knew that they done their best.

The girls on the team had high hopes for their playing this season. Most players tended to think that the team would finish in the top three in the final standings. Freshmen Sarah Ross said that they would do "Pretty good, as long as we practice hard." Judging from the team's performance they practiced very hard. They made it to the Regional rounds.

The volleyball team was not all about fun and games. They fought hard to win during the season and they had their rivals. This seasons main challenges were Chancellor, Massaponax, and Caroline. Though these teams were tough, our girls felt that they could triumph over them during the season.

Ross said the team's goals this year included, "Working together, serving well, and winning." The team had worked together nicely, they served well, and they had certainly won, so there was little room for disappointment there. Sophomore Amanda Sale said, "Our goal is to win." In 2001, this goal seemed highly achievable.

Community Divider

WORKING TOGETHER AS A WHOLE

Through the years, our community has given a lot to the faculty and to the student body. In return for the good things that we received, we cleaned up the environment, and helped the community.

The students planned cleanups of roads and rivers in our community, and they sang Christmas carols to the sick and collected money for the poor. The community and the school life went hand in hand.

Members of the community each had their own jobs. Some of which were volunteering, picking up trash, and helping those less fortunate. These members spent their spare time and even in some cases during school helping out one another. This community was not like any other, it was OUR COMMUNITY.

Casie,

Life is full of choices.
Choices are what make your happiness or sadness. With choices comes change. Never be afraid of change. Its your choice ! You are more precious to me than anything in this world. I love you more then live itself. Enjoy Life. Keep Smiling :)

Elisabeth Fishel once said, "Our sisters hold up our mirrors: our images of who we are and of who we can dare to become." Plato said, "true friendship is infinite and immortal." Molly Anne, little sister, best friend--wasn't it just yesterday when we held a concert for mom and dad in the basement? Time goes by so quickly and we have so many more good times to look forward to. But for now, Congratulations!!

Mission Statement

Spotsylvania High School's annual, The Trail, attempts to cover the people and events of the school year as fairly and objectively as possible. The yearbook provides an opportunity to record the history of the school through both print and photography.

Although it is a publication traditionally done on a volunteer basis, it is now the product of the Journalism I, II, and III classes and the Yearbook production class. Students earn academic credits for learning journalism while producing the yearly annual.

Staff members assume leadership roles, accept responsibility, and become liaisons as student publications personnel between the school and the community.

The editors and staff members reserve the right to select content and determine priorities in both photographs and written materials. They never intentionally libel, invade the privacy of, deny the rights of, orridu ridicule or mock an individual or a group.

The yearbook focuses on school events, individual groups, community, state, national, and international events that have an effect on the student body.

Colophon

Volume 33 of The Trail, the yearbook of Spotsylvania High School, was printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks of 525 Boyds School Road, Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, 17325, with the help of local representatives Annette Rollyson and Gayle Price and in-plant Customer Service Adviser Debbie Drobenak. With a press run of 675, the book consisted of 216 pages printed on 80 lb. Bordeaux paper stock.

The cover is a custom embossed silkscreen featuring a 1067 Navy base material with 23 Silver silkscreen paint, F06 Red foil, and English Strait grain applied. The endsheets are 100 lb. white stock with PMS 281 and PMS 185 applied.

All pages were submitted on disk using Adobe PageMaker 6.5 software and Herff Jones PageMaster templates. All portrait photography was supplied by Lifetouch by Segall Majestic, who also supplied photography for the Prom, Graduation, the Homecoming pep rally, parade and game, the Homecoming Dance, the club and team pictures.

Closing

Through this year we have seen it all,

Who would be our next president was the story of the Fall.

*As it turns out Bush would win,
The whole controversy made our heads spin.*

*We have learned new lessons,
and made new friends,*

The year was filled with memories that will never end.

Whether it was Homecoming or Prom, girls or guys,

We have seen it all this year...
